Dedication

We gratefully dedicate this book to

DEAN EVERETT FRASER

Dean of the Law School and Chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Activities, whose earnest efforts have made this college year a stepping stone to a "Greater George Washington University."

EVERETT FRASER, A. B., LL. B.

Dean of the Law School.

Dean Everett Fraser.

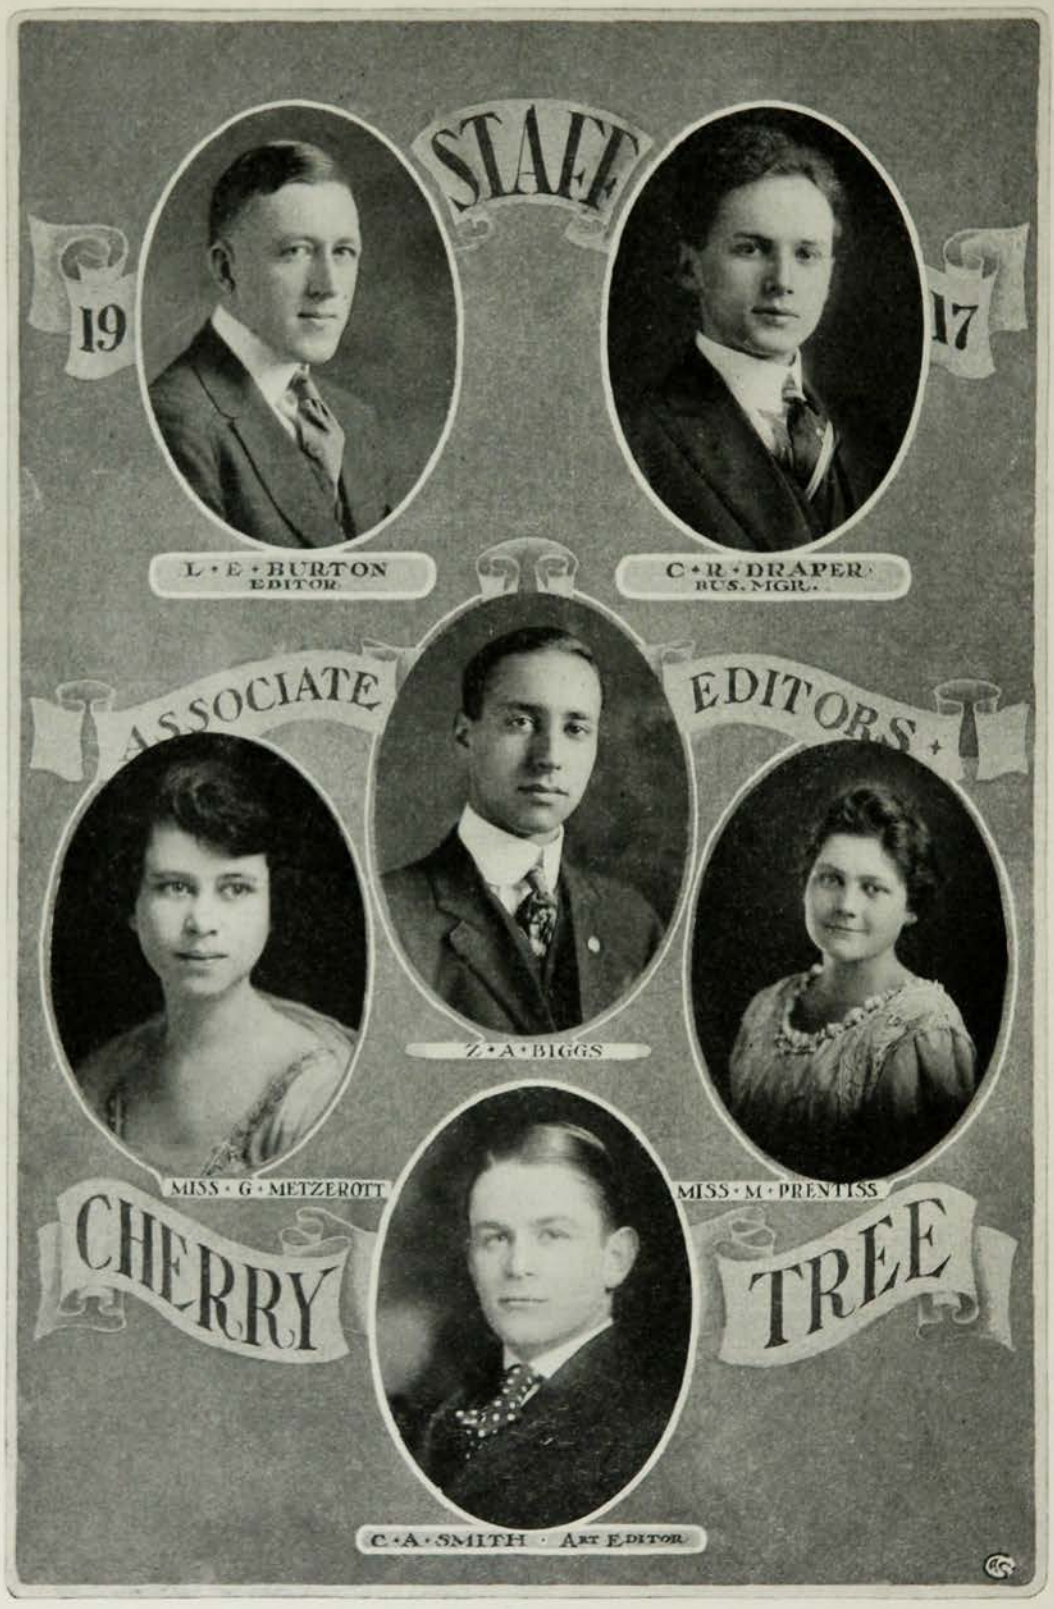

The fates were indeed kind to the student body of George Washington University when they decreed that Dean Fraser should come to us in 1910 from Harvard University, where he received his LL. B.

Dean Fraser received his early education at Prince of Wales College, Prince Edward Island. He obtained his B. A. at Delhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, and on his way to George Washington stopped at Harvard University long enough to obtain the aforesaid LL. B.

As Professor Fraser, he was a factor among the students and faculty, and became Dean of the Law School in 1914, still spreading that progressive spirit for which he is so highly esteemed. This is Dean Fraser's second year as chairman of the factulty committee on student activities, and it was through this office that he organized the Student Council in the spring of 1916, and is now the chief adviser of that body in its first active year.

This college year has been a memorable one in the annals of George Washington University, for it has seen the revival of football, the success of basketball and track, the organization of the student council, and an increased enthusiasm on the part of the student body.

For his active part in the success of these undertakings we thank Dean Fraser and sincerely hope that the good work may continue.

George Washington University

Chartered by an act of Congress in 1821 as the "Columbian College in the District of Columbia" for the "sole and exclusive purpose of educating youth in the English, learned and foreign languages, the liberal arts, sciences and literature," the present George Washington University has, in the ninety-six years of its existence, undergone nearly as many vicissitudes and disappointments as did the man whose name it bears during the seven years of the American Revolution.

The new college opened January 15, 1822, with 39 students. The number soon increased to 250. There were five departments; preparatory, collegiate, theological, law, and medical. The Theological School was later removed, and the preparatory branch abandoned after the building of the local high schools.

In 1904 a proposition of the George Washington Memorial Association that Columbian College change its name to that of George Washington University was accepted by the Board of Trustees. The National College of Pharmacy, and the College of Veterinary Medicine were established by an act of Congress in 1905.

Rear-Admiral Charles H. Stockton, L. L. D., U. S. N., retired, was elected president of the University on November 30, 1910. Under his able guidance the University was successfully reorganized. The property at 15th and H streets was sold and the Law School located at the Masonic Temple building.

The remaining college departments of Arts and Sciences, except that of Chemistry, were moved to a series of buildings on I street between 16th street and Vermont avenue. In the year 1912 these departmentss were removed to their present location on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

This year 1916 finds the University upon a firm financial basis and with a record attendance of 1,884 students in all of the departments.

The revival of football has brought with it a revival of college spirit.

If President Monroe could view the University in which he vested so much faith, we have every reason to believe that he would deem his prophecy of nearly a century ago concerning the institution of this college, a true one:

"There is good reason to believe that the hope of those who have so patriotically contributed to advance it to its present stage, will not be disappointed."

Teachers College

The first attempt to give systematic instruction, definitely correlated with the work of teachers in service was made in 1904 when a committee headed by Dean Munroe, with Dean Wilbur and Professor Carroll as the other two members, put in force a regular schedule of courses relating to subjects taught in the public schools. In co-operation with Mr. A. T. Stuart, then Superintendent of Schools, fifteen teachers were to be admitted to each of these courses, on registration, with free tuition. In the year 1906, the last year these teachers' courses were given, ninety students were enrolled.

In the year 1907, and from this year Teachers' College dates its history, a Division of Education was organized, thus making this branch of the work an integral part of the University, with Professor Williston Hough in charge. This division granted the Bachelor's degree in the Arts and Science, and the Teacher's Diploma upon the completion of sixty hours' work, thirty hours being prescribed, nine of which were to be taken in Teachers College. The aim of the Division was thus stated: "To provide instruction in pedagogical science and also professional training for the vocation of teaching and school administration."

The vacancy caused by the death of Dean Hough was filled by the appointment of Professor Ruediger to the deanship. Under his supervision Teachers College has grown rapidly and has graduated many able students and teachers.

Engineering College

The present College of Engineering at the George Washington University is the outgrowth of the Corcoran Scientific School of the Columbian University, founded in 1884 and named in honor of Mr. W. W. Corcoran, one of the very active benefactors of the University. The Corcoran Scientific School remained a branch of the University until 1902, when the old Columbian University was reorganized. In this reorganization the Corcoran Scientific School became the Washington College of Engineering. In 1904, when the Columbian University became the George Washington University, the Washington College of Engineering became the College of Engineering and Mechanic Arts, and was made a part of the Department of Arts and Sciences. In 1915 the name was again changed from the College of Engineering and Mechanic Arts to the name it now bears, "The College of Engineering."

The growth of the College of Engineering up to the last ten years was slow, but since it has developed steadily, and with Dean Howard Lincoln Hodgkins at its head, is well on the road to a fuller realization of its chief aim, that of disseminating thorough technical training. With day and evening classes, it meets the needs of all types of students, and such a condition tends to produce an ideal college, for the characteristics of the one type complement those of the other.

Law School

Established in 1865, the Law School is the oldest in the city of Washington, and is celebrating its fifty-second year of active existence by embarking on a campaign to raise $100,000 for a new building. Since the campaign plans are ambitious, and since a large sum has already been raised, there is no hesitancy in looking forward to the graduation of the present Freshman class—that of '19—from a splendid edifice that is now becoming a reality.

The school has always been recognized as one of the foremost in the country. A charter member of the American Association of Law Schools consisting of forty-six of the most progressive institutions for legal training in the United States, the George Washington Law School has always stood for the highest and most progressive standards in legal education. It maintains the highest entrance requirements of any law school in the District of Columbia, if not in the entire south.

The case method of instruction, evolved by the distinguished legal scholar, Christopher Langdell, is the medium of instruction used in the Law School. This intensive and scientific method of legal teaching requires a faculty which spends much of its time in study and research. Six members of the Law Faculty devote all their time to their professorships, and the practice courses are taught by judges and lawyers in active practice. Among the distinguished legal scholars who have occupied positions on the Law School Faculty are Mr. Justice Harlan, Mr. Justice Brewer, and Mr. Justice Strong, of the Supreme Court of the United States; Justice Cranch, Hon. Henry St. George Tucker, Hon. Hannis Taylor, Hon. William A. Maury, Professor James Brown Scott, Professor William R. Vance, and Professor E. G. Lorenzen.

The history of the George Washington Law School has been one of "high thinking and plain living" to quote Professor Stockton. The school has continually made sacrifices in a material sense to gain high scholarship and to produce worthy members of the legal profession. The hosts of loyal alumni who are today responding to a new call for assistance proves that the sacrifices were not in vain.

Medical School

The seventeenth medical school founded in the United States, the Medical School of the George Washington University, first opened its doors March 30th, 1825. The first lecture was given in this department—then called the National Medical College—in March, 1825. The original faculty consisted of six professors, and the course covered two years of five months each.

The present Medical Building was first used in 1902, and the hospital in 1903. Night classes were abolished in 1908, and the first all-day class was graduated in 1911. The requirements for entrance have been increased to one year of collegiate work, and in accordance with this advance a pre-medical department has been established at the University.

The faculty, headed by Dr. William Cline Borden, Dean of the Medical Department, has left no stone unturned for the betterment of the institution and the character of the work accomplished, and the rank to which the school has now attained is a fitting tribute to their efforts.

The ultimate success of any institution depends a very great deal upon the achievements of its alumni, and in this respect the accomplishments of the George Washington Medical School graduates speak for themselves, and their records will always be a source of unending pride to the University.

Dental School

With an equipment consisting of a few old chairs, two lathes, and a vulcanizer set up in an old building in which on cold days the lecturers had to stand over registers to keep warm, and the students wore overcoats while working in the laboratories, and a faculty of two inexperienced but ambitious young dentists, Dr. J. Hall Lewis, and Dr. Henry Clay Thompson, the Dental School began its career thirty-one years ago.

Dr. Lewis served as Dean for a number of years, and when ill health forced him to withdraw he was succeeded by Dr. Henry Clay Thompson. Dr. Thompson resigned at the end of one year in favor of Dr. Roland J. Walton, the present Dean.

The faculty now consists of thirty-one professors and associates. The enrollment which in 1886 numbered 10 students, now numbers 125, and the original equipment has been replaced by elaborate modern chairs, vulcanizers and lathes, and the laboratories, lecture halls, and the infirmary have been enlarged and modernized.

The entrance requirements have been materially raised, and the course beginning in 1917 will be increased to four years. The past record of the school is an enviable one, and much praise is due the men who have given their best efforts to the interests of the school.

College of Veterinary Medicine

It's a long cry from the "hoss doctor" of yesterday, who usually knew nothing about medicine at all, to the well trained Doctor of Veterinary Medicine of today. The College of Veterinary Medicine was established by an act of Congress in 1905, and until 1912 this department required only three years to complete its course. Owing to the rapid advancement of veterinary medicine throughout the country, and in order to maintain the high standard recommended by the American Veterinary Medical Association and the Department of Agriculture, the board of trustees thought it wise to establish a four-year course of veterinary medicine beginning with the 1912-13 session. The college was the first one in the United States to establish a four-year course, and contrary to expectations the enrollment increased instead of decreased with the adoption of the four-year course.

Opportunities for clinic and collateral training in veterinary medicine in this department are unexcelled. Fort Myer, Bethesda, and Beltsville Experimental Stations, and the various government frams are at the disposal of students, as well as the libraries and government departments in the city and the laboratories of the Departments of Chemistry and Medicine of the University.

The Faculty numbers 22 members, and with three well-equipped laboratories, the students are insured a thorough training in both laboratory and clinical work.

The graduates of the College of Veterinary Medicine are eligible to membership in the American Veterinary Medical Association. They are also eligible to service in the United States Department of Agriculture and the United States Army after passing the required examinations.

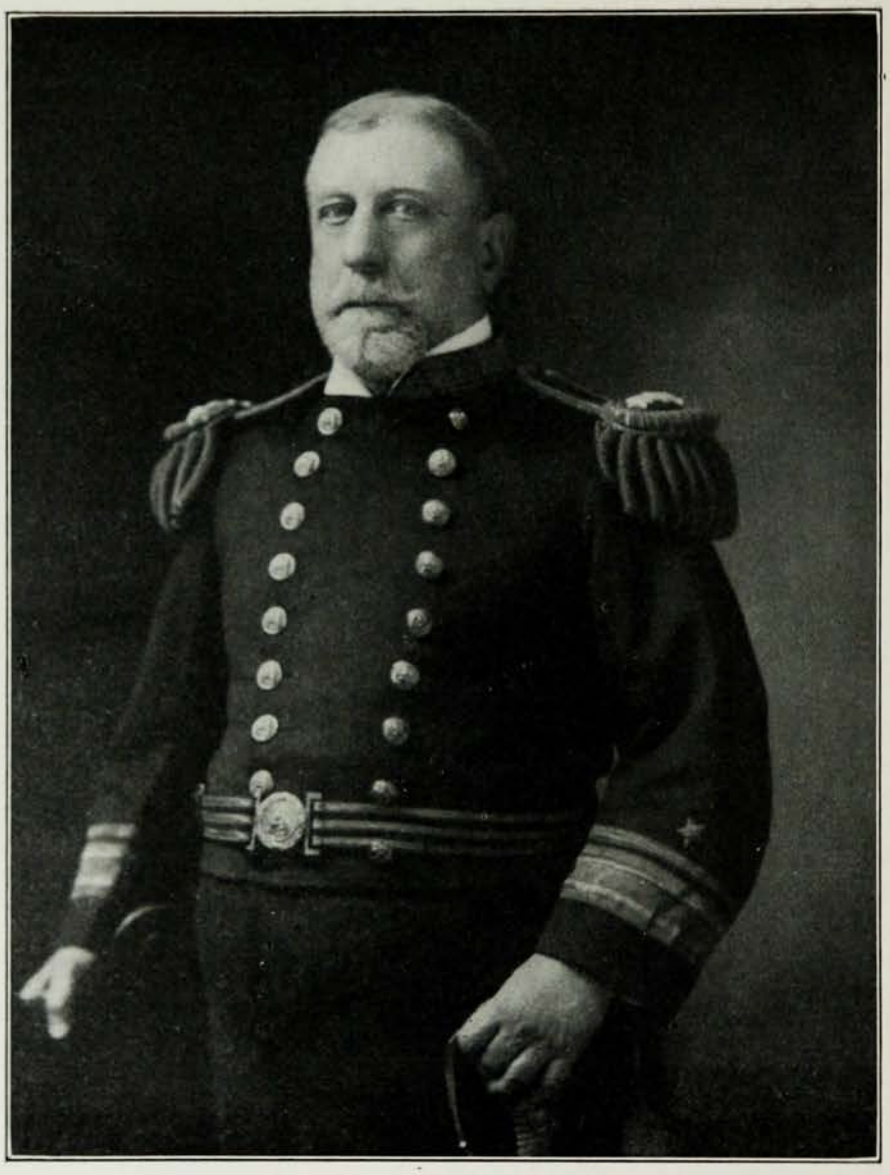

College of Pharmacy

The National College of Pharmacy was chartered by an act of Congress in 1872, and opened its doors to students November 11th of that year. With the transfer of the School of Pharmacy of the then Columbian University to the College, the classes were so augmented that the college was enabled to graduate a small class at the close of its first term.

From the date of its organization the college has steadily advanced in material prosperity until now it is located in a building of its own, built in 1888, completely equipped with modern apparatus and appliances. From the first the college has kept abreast with the most progressive schools of its class, and in many ways has paved the way for the enlargement and improvement of the curriculum of the colleges of pharmacy.

In February, 1906, the National College of Pharmacy became part of the educational system of the George Washington University.

The demand for services of the graduates of the college is in excess of the supply. The scope of the course, combined with the thoroughness with which it is taught, produce qualities sought and appreciated by proprietors, managers, and manufacturers, and no graduate has ever had difficulty in securing lucrative employment, a condition which speaks most favorably for the College.

Senior Class History.

Four years ago an untutored mob signed their names to a death certificate tendered them by Miss Watkins. Then this same unruly bunch proceeded to run amuck through the halls of Columbian college. In their ravings one could see the love of plowed fields, wild antics developed in high school, and that broadness of intellect resulting from prep school experience.

But such actions were tolerated for only a brief period, for one day a distinguished upper class man called them together, told them they were a class annd proceeded to conduct an election. "Beany" Leetch was elected president, showing that the "westerners" were in the majority. This first year was a quiet one for the mob, for it did not take them long to learn that they were to be seen and not heard.

By the time the class of 1917 were "sophs" they were able to conduct their own election and for some unknown reason placed "Rus" Duval in the president's chair. That year the class showed some signs of life and became a unit at G. W.

On becoming juniors this same ex-mob elected John S. Bixler to succeed "Rus." It was a big job to hold the class down that year for they got into everything and made the old school sit up and take notice.

And now the inevitable has happened. The class of 1917, once raw material, has become, after successive distillations, a finished product. Many have fallen by the wayside and others will follow later on but those who go forth from G. W. in June will not be spoken of just as "another graduating class," but as "That class of 1917," led by "Johnnie" Bixler, pulled along by "Ted" Seibold and her feminine cohorts and pushed by Tully Garner and his band of trusty warriors.

Senior Class History

One beautiful day in September, many years ago, a number of young freshmen set sail on the good ship "College of Engineering," to traverse the seas of knowledge. They were in search of the Land of Graduation, wherein they had heard was kept the Golden Fleece.

Verily did these sailors realize the dangers that beset their way for their able captain had told them of the giant subjects of the King of Science that would confront them. But with brave hearts they set out. All went well until they approached the Capes of Analytics, when lo! a great storm arose, which threatened their destruction. It was passing these capes that they first beheld the Witch of Agnesi dancing with the Lemniscate, the Spiral of Archimedes. And when they entered the sea of Calculus the storm so grew in its fury that it sent alternating currents of fear and despair through their mechanism. Great indeed was the consternation of the crew, when after passing that dangerous sea, they beheld giant Structures in their way—massive columns of steel which made the boldest of them tremble. But here the first mate came to their rescue, and showed them how to "cut a section" through these obstacles, so that now they are approaching unharmed the Land of Graduation.

Of the many who started that trip only seven remain to tell the wonderful story. Some were lost on the way while others took more circuitous routes, which lead to the same goal. Now that the day of parting has arrived, those seven begin to realize that the voyage was not all work, but filled with much play and kind thoughts. Many a weary hour in the drafting room was brightened by the jovial spirits of "Jim" and "Fish," and never will we forget the "loves" of "Dick" No. 1, the Romeo of the fourth floor.

To our worthy captain Dean Hodgkins and his able officers we owe a debt of gratitude, for they have taught us how to "become engineers," and infused into us the spirit and glory of the truth seeker.

And as the curtain falls upon our exit from the halls of our Ala Mater we bow with reverence to her name, hoping that in days to come, each of us will be able to say, as did the great Caesar: "Veni, vidi, vici—I came, I saw, I conquered.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

"Fish's" keynote is cheerfulness. No one has ever seen him downhearted and regardless of time, tides and bricks on his drawing board he can always come back with a smile. "Fish" was married last year and he graduates this year. Corollary: Nerve and a wife are great assets.

SETH THOMAS BOWEN.

"Mike," as he is sometimes called by his classmates, likes to mix philosophy into his engineering problems and after hearing him expound one of his theories, there is no doubt in the minds of his hearers that argument would be fruitless. Nothwithstanding this hobby he is an all-around good fellow and we will miss him very much.

CHARLES BAILEY RICHARD.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

"Dick" is "Stiff's" brother but you could never tell it. "Dick" is opposed to the education of the "gentle sex" as he says they detract from the solemnity of the class room. In other words our friend Richard is a student and one of whom G. W. is proud.

Senior Class History

To put it mildly, classes in Teachers College are interesting things. This one is no exception. A group of pople, some seventeen in number, became aware some months ago, through the Dean's kindness, that they were a class. Hence they decided to dissipate some motion in the form of a class election, and pass from that indefinite, incoherent heterogeneity known as Student-Body-in-General, to that definite, coherent homogeneity called the Class of Seventeen. This integration of matter taking place after many other classes had undergone parallel transformations, resulted in the election of Elmer Kayser as President, Susan H. Gardner as Vice-President, and Mary M. Greenwood as Secretary-Treasurer.

As to class history this is all that we have—the tale of our evolution. Yet, in retrospect, we can find much whereat to marvel. Though we have run the gamut of philosophical shades from formless matter to matterless form, after a long dwelling in antemundane shades, we still remain orthodox, wondering at the whatness of where. Though we have learned to express our higher selves through language, we can still say but little. And though for so many years past, "interest and effort" have been our daily bread, we would not berate Providence for including us in its catalogue of pedagogues.

Senior Class History

Let us pause a moment to consider the history of the past. Can it be three years since that eventful day when we were officialy recognized as the class of 1917? Recollection of what has occurred since that time leaves us firmly convinced that it is so.

Heterogeneous in politics and policies, though one in purpose, we soon came to realize that to become learned in the law, we must study law, as differentiated from that allegorical expression "to read law." Our struggles have been hard, our hours long. The unrequited toil has caused many to drop by the wayside—those who heeded not the vaticinal whisper of fortune.

Following the usual formalities which mark the opening of the collegiate year we found ourselves started upon the long road to a degree in law. The daily routine of the Freshman year was broken here and there by a little social frolic; the social activities closing with the semi-centenary banquet, immediately preceding the final examinations which were to signify the end of a number of legal careers.

Upon gathering together in the fall of our Junior year, behold, there were fewer of us, but those who had weathered the first year had determined to see it through. Shortly after convening we elected another leading member of the class as president, who proceeded to launch a smoker for the class and faculty. The affair was a success. During the year the class entered the spirited movement of the alumni association to raise funds for a new law building, the need of which has been keenly felt during our course of study in the Law School.

No announcement brought forth more response than the proposal of the faculty to institute a summer session of six weeks beginning in 1916. To "1917" this meant a great deal. It presented an opportunity to lighten the burden of the senior year and gave some assurance of graduating on time. Those who enrolled in the course fully appreciate the forethought of the faculty, not to mention the personal enjoyment of those seven A. M. classes.

Time flies, and the senior year was upon us, with Moot Court and the accompanying pleasures of trying our first case. Here it was that the discovery was made that the brilliancy of a trial depends upon the relative ability of the attorneys—no case is better than the lawyers make it.

As we close, it is but our duty to express our gratefulness for the opportunity which has been ours. The toil acting as a reminder of what the world demands of those upon whom she showers her blessings. Defeat and failure have only spurred us on to greater effort and success is the crowning glory. As time goes on these last three years will be represented to us as milestones in the road of happy yesterday; the record of the past being a valuable heritage as inspiration for the future.

"The love of friendships, deep enscrolled;
Their faith, that time and tide endowers,
Remembrances—these things we hold
Irrevocably ours!"

Senior Class History

Our entrance into the gruelling lists of the medical world was auspicious for one fact if for no other, namely, our extensive enrollment. True it is that time, the temperer of all things and examinations, the temperer of things in particular, have reduced our ranks until we finally approach the hallowed sanctum of graduation with less than half of our original number.

Our class life has been all that it should have been. William T. Gill in the first and third years, James Houghton in the second, and Bertram Groesbeck in the fourth, have presided with credible efficiency over our destinies. Our class government has on the whole been good.

We approach the future gladly and enthusiastically, yet it is not without a feeling of regret that we cast aside those things which have been so much a part of us these four years, much more a part than we now realize. A student as with any other individual gets out of life just so much as he puts into it. The man who voluntarily drinks his coffee without sugar, eats his brad without butter, and his sweetmeats without spice must condole himself for the lack of enjoyment thereby derived. Like the religious fanatics of old such self-denial must have its own reward and we question not the actions of these few.

All in all our experiences at George Washington have been valuable and enjoyable. Our friendships have been many and our troubles few. We scatter to our respective fields of activity (the faculty willing???) with the sincerest wishes for the future success of every member of the class of nineteen seventeen.

OLD SEVENTEEN.

These four weary years are fast flying
Away to their eternity,
And while the last hours are dying,
We hang in the old "Cherry Tree"
An ode to the harvest they brought us,
To the rich fund of knowledge we glean
From the wondrouss lessons they taught us,
The class of "nineteen seventeen."

Perhaps upon times we grew weary,
And wished for that halcyon day
Of a life that would not seem so dreary,
And still as the years slip away,
There may yet come a time when the churning
And grinding of life's mad machine,
Fills our hearts with a longing and yearning

For the days of old "seventeen."
Those old friendships we'll value and cherish
Always, for the fullness they gave,
And though other memories perish,
We'll carry one to the grave;
We'll revere the name of our college,
We'll revere the place and the scene
That gave birth to the fund of our knowledge,
The good old "Nineteen Seventeen."

Senior Class History

In the fall of 1914, there assembled at George Washington University a composite group of men and women which is the nucleus of the present Senior Class. Since that time many faces have disappeared from that group but only kind remembrance can be had of their associations with us. Many new faces have been added to the group to swell the thinning ranks, and, having the honor of being the largest Freshman Class in the history of the University, the enrollment numbering fifty-seven students, we now find ourselves near the end of our journey still holding the record of being the largest Senior Class in the history of the Dental School.

Many things occurred in our Freshman year which would fain discourage the most resolute, but with an indomitable will we have forged ahead with but one purpose in view, sacrificing money, pleasure and health, all with that one end in view, and hoping when the mists have rolled away and a roll call is taken of the graduates of 1917 that not a name will be missing.

Having evaded the professors and dodged the treasurer's office we found ourselves located in the large and commodious quarters reserved for the Junior class. When the roll call was taken we found that there were many familiar faces absent, the shrapnel having thinned our ranks, but those remaining were a happy group and still retained all the old class spirit.

Another final eliminating contest was held by the various professors from which we emerged with flying colors ready to enter our Senior year. On assembling again, this time in the Senior laboratory, when the roll was called, we were pleased to note that with a single exception the boys answerd "here."

Once again politicians were found on the job and the political campaign was both exciting and interesting, but when the final returns were handed in everyone was surprised to find a lady had been elected president, Douglas, vice president, Lockwood, secretary and treasurer, Bowen, class editor.

Speaking seriously our class sincerely regrets having to leave the old Buff and Blue at this time when it seems apparent that it is about to make a mark for itself in the collegiate world. The members, however, are gratified to know that they materially helped the institution start on the road to a bigger, better and greater George Washington University.

COLORADO.

Class President, '14; Editor, '17.

A mite from the mountains of Colorado. He has theories of his own as to the characteristics resulting from the blending of temperaments, and has no use for metallo-plastic questions on "Rubber Day." A stepladder will of necessity be a part of Shorty's office equipment. He expects to practice in his home state and desires that there be among his patients none but the calm, quiet and peaceful kind.

MUNN QUAYDE CANNON.

Σ X; Ψ Ω

UTAH.

Student Council; Vice-President Interfraternity Association; Class Editor Cherry Tree, '16.

"Munn" is popular with all the ladies except, possibly, the co-ed opposite him in the senior "lab." This alone would almost tell you he hailed from the Mormon State. He is an aquatic artist of no small repute. It's back to the old Salt State for Cannon when D. D. S. is added to his already queer title.

EDWARD J. COPPING, JR.

Ψ Ω

MARYLAND.

The boy of our class; loves the ladies, but lacks experience. He frequents Velati's for some reason. Ed is the chief engineer for the vulcanizers.

MERLE E. DONAHAY.

Ψ Ω

PENNSYLVANIA.

Donahay is by far the handsomest man in the class and that is not all. For he is the friend of everyone and we shall miss his cheery smile.

Senior Dentists

EDWARD DONOVAN.

Δ Σ Δ

MASSACHUSETTS.

This young man has just joined our class and it is needless to say we are glad to have him.

FRANK W. DOUGLAS.

Ψ Ω

FLORIDA.

Vice-President, '17.

"Doug." is our worthy representative for the Everglades, and we have no doubt that ere long Miami, Fla., will boast of another fine dentist.

JOHN L. ELLIOTT.

Ψ Ω

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

"Dad" Elliott hails from the District of Columbia. He is married, girls, and says there is no chance of being treated gently.

MILTON FORMAN.

TEXAS.

A man deserving of more space than is possible to give him here. He believes in accumulating knowledge by means of queries and observations. His manifest interest in the day school during his Junior year earned for him the title of "Dean." He is an advocate of the use of chewing gum for the purpose of cleaning the teeth and developing the jaws and muscles of mastication, but prefers to publish his theories after obtaining his degree.

LEON FROST.

Σ X; Ψ Ω

OHIO.

Student Council, '17; Interfraternity Association, '17; Departmental Editor Cherry Tree, '17.

"Jerry is in a class by himself—no one ever looked, acted or talked like him. He is a soloist, an orator and "heater." Would that we could have him with us always.

Senior Dentists

PATRICK GALLAGHER.

NEW YORK.

"Pat" is interested particularly in research work. He is known also as the competitor of Houdini, the difference being that Houdini gets out and "Pat" gets in. He is authority on everything and is decidedly averse to drawing blackboard sketches of electrical apparatus.

GEORGE F. GOETZMAN.

WISCONSIN.

Sec.-Treas, '14.

George couldn't wait until June to get married, and now spends more time in school. We know he is sure to succeed.

FREDERICK W. HORGAN.

Ψ Ω

MASSACHUSETTS.

Better known as "Coach," a bashful gent from the seat of culture. Quite a linguist and renowned conversationalist. Horgan's determination to make good has won the admiration of his fellow students.

SEIICHI KATAYAMA.

JAPAN.

D. D. S.; University of Tokio.

The remaining member from the Far East. He spends most of his time consulting a dictionary and interpreting questions for his classmates.

E. J. KEARNEY.

Ψ Ω

A betrothed young man with a very pleasing manner. His bowling fame has received comment from the national association. We see a great future for this chap in the dental profession.

Senior Dentists

GEORGE W. LADY.

Ψ Ω

OHIO.

President, '17.

George is a high grade diplomat. Although he bears a feminine name he can be listed as 100 per cent masculine. He has been a pillar of the class and is well worthy of a place among the "Old Reliables."

GEORGE L. LANSDALE.

Ψ Ω

ARKANSAS.

We were glad to welcome this gentleman from Arkansas and have found him a consistent worker and a splendid addition to the class.

DANIEL S. LOCKWOOD.

Ψ Ω

ILLINOIS.

"Lockey," the man with the military bearing, is a ranking member of the bowling team, and has somewhat of a reputation as a "pool shark." He entertains the boys with rehearsals of his former maritime experience and by using the "lab" as a campus, he trains them along military lines. He is one man we will miss.

WILLIAM I. OGUS.

MASSACHUSETTS.

A typical product of the "Bay State." Past master of the terpsichorean art and the possessor of more medals from the Arcade than any other dental student. But this doesn't prevent his being a student. We are proud of him.

FRANK G. PORTER.

Ψ Ω

IOWA.

This young man hails from Iowa. He is noted for his arguing abilities and the fact that he never gets angry. We are told that he is in love but is waiting for his D. D. S.

Senior Dentists

CLAUDE M. POSTLEWAIT.

Ψ Ω

ILLINOIS.

"Poste," otherwise known as "Whistletrigger," noted for his prolixity, diffuseness, pleonasm, amplification, redundance and copia verbosum, with which he is sometimes said to worry the nurses.

JAMES I. ROOT.

Ψ Ω

MICHIGAN.

"Jimmie" first became famous as an anatomist, and has since carried that fame with him into many other subjects. He is rather unassuming, but always able to deliver the goods when called on in class. He is a congenial fellow, a thorough student and a worthy son of Michigan.

ARTHUR WILLIAM SHEA.

Ψ Ω

VERMONT.

We have found him a splendid chap and wish him luck in his chosen profession.

WALTER FRANCIS SULLIVAN.

Ψ Ω

PENNSYLVANIA.

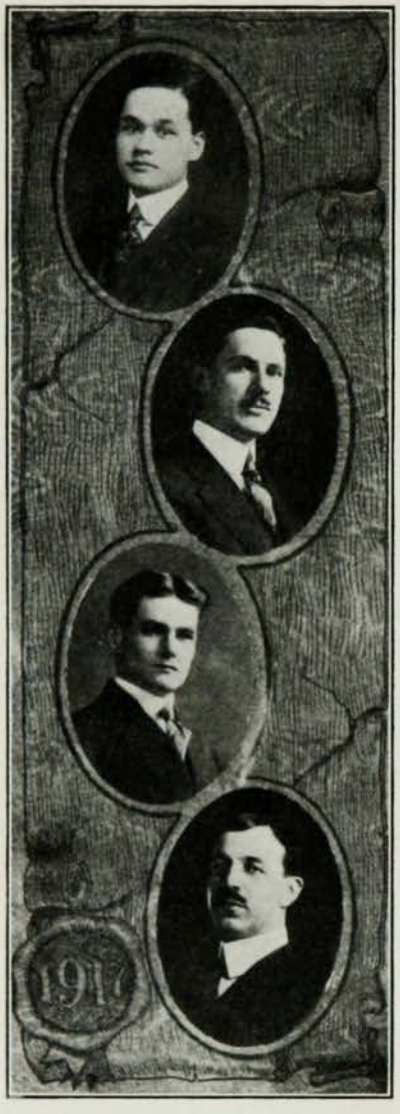

It has been a genuine pleasure to have known and associated with Walter for the past three years and while he is never known to miss an opportunity to ask a question of the professors, thus holding the entire class up for a quarter of an hour, still we love him still—the stiller the better.

WILLIAM M. SWEET.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

A famous guitar player and all-around musician. Also spends a little time studying dentistry.

Senior Dentists

TOSHIO TAHARA.

JAPAN.

D. D. S.; University of Tokio.

Another of the "big three" from the Far East, and another of the brilliant students.

EMMET THOMPSON THORNTON.

Ψ Ω

WEST VIRGINIA.

Thornton is one of the boys whom it was our plesaure to welcome from another school at the beginning of our Senior year. He is very much attached to the Senior prosthetic laboratory, where his location is promiscuously arrayed with electrical devices designed for the furtherance of his dental ambitions, which we feel certain that he will realize some day. we feel that an appreciative public waits him somewhere.

WEBB W. WYMAN.

OHIO.

A splendid fellow and one whose energy is admired. His favorite pastime is matching pennies to obtain funds to equip his office in the Buckeye State.

FESTY YOAKUM.

This Prince of Technique or Mechanical Wizard hails from the "Rattlesnake" section of West Virginia. Festy can't be annoyed with anything but progressive dentistry and we feel that an appreciative public waits him somewhere.

JOSEPH E. ARBERLY.

This pleasant, good looking blond hails from the "Buckeye" State. Is noted as a connoisseur of teeth, especially chicken teeth. He claims that it is possible according to his Bertillon system of classification to distinguish a "broiler" from an "F" street by the development grooves.

GEORGE A. FLANAGAN.

LOUISIANA.

Enemies of the estimable son of Erin are a missing quantity. Flanagan has been our reporter and in this capacity has almost conducted a publishing company for the benefit of the class.

SHINTARO MATSUMOTO.

JAPAN.

D. D. S.; University of Japan.

Another one of the trio from the far east and a real student. We are very sorry to lose him so soon.

LEAH MINKIN.

This young lady is following in the footsteps of her sister in trying to get her degree as a doctor. She is known to us all as "Minkie," and we feel very proud of her.

MILTON STEPHENS.

Big Steve from the Sunny South. The love dart struck this mere man—hence he prolonged his course.

FREDERICK D. WOODS.

ARKANSAS.

Known as the inimitable "Mr. Woods." He is a strong advocate of an entire reversal of everything including his college course.

Senior Class History

It seems but a short time ago that the class of 1917 made their first appearance before the Superintendent. It hardly seems three years ago that we had to force back the tears when assisting a doctor and try to make the patients think we had worn our neat little dresses forever.

Out of a class of eighteen only five remain. Dan Cupid came along and thinned out our ranks. But this only tended to make us work harder and bear up under the old saying, "The best goods come in small packages."

We feel very kindly towards our instructors who were so patient with us while we were learning to take temperature, and to tell each mother that her baby was the prettiest one we had ever seen. We are grateful for the kindness and attention bestowed upon us by our Superintendent, who has always been ready with a kind and encouraging word, and who has made us realize the greatness of the work we have undertaken.

"Still they gazed and still the wonder grew; that one small head could carry all she knew."

We love "Bean" and her candy. We have pledged ourselves to guard her carefully until June and see that the automobile always brings her back.

CORA WARWICK FRIDLEY.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Vice-President, '16; Secretary and Treasurer, '17.

"Smallest mortals when mounted aloft by circumstances come to seem great."

It took much persuasion on our part to get Cora to promise to stay off the farm until she has finished her course. Although small she is always around to fit in the needful places when help is wanted.

NELLIE GARDNER HAYDEN.

MARYLAND.

Secretary and Treasurer, '16; Editor, '17.

"Good nature and good sense are never separated."

A very matter of fact girl who has implicit faith in love. A little inclined towards fickleness and at present she is in a quandary as to whether she should keep them all on a string or pick out one.

MARY BELLE HOOKS.

TENNESSEE.

"The mintage of wisdom is shown that rest is rust and that real life lies in love, laughter and work."

We have a treasure in Mary Belle with her sunny disposition and kind words. She laughs away the tears and troubles of all of us brings gladness to all about her.

SARAH SNELSON.

NORTH CAROLINA.

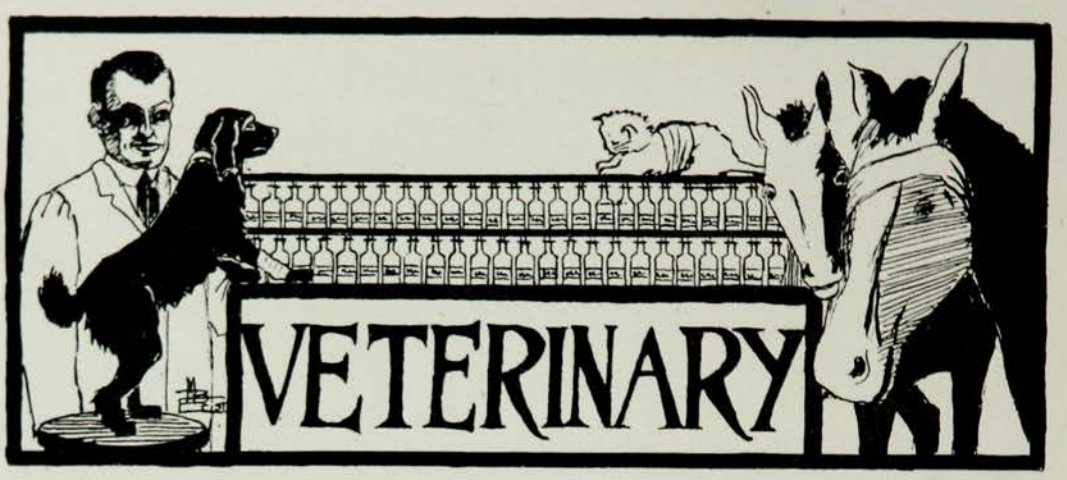

President, '17.

"She will speak to you in silence."

Sarah came to us after spending three years finishing a course in expression. But it was not for her and for the past three years she has been training her emotions back to normal. She delights in being dignified and sets a studious example for her classmates to follow.

Senior Class History

'Tis said there were thirteen of us in the beginning. Well, look at us now! Of that unlucky number but five remain for the last lap of the race. One by one the others dropped by the wayside, one here, one there, as their fortunes willed it, until only this lucky five is left.

We have fought the hard fight, and, with the sheepskin almost within our grasp, we pause for a moment to look still further on ahead into the mysterious future and wonder, wonder what the coming years will bring to each of us. Will it be that $10,000 a year practice, or will it be, perchance, just a lot of hard work and yet a comfortable, independent feeling of work well done? Quien sabe? But be it what it may, we can most assuredly face our future tasks all the stronger and the better for the many days that we have labored together, and the richer for the associations and friendships we have formed and the memories that we will carry away with us from the class rooms of George Washington University.

WILLARD HULL WRIGHT.

OHIO.

Secretary-Treasurer, '14; Editor, '15; President, '16; Editor, '17; Secretary Vet. Med. Assoc., '17.

It must have been a dark day in the Buckeye State when the stork left "Skinny" on the doorstep. Willard is going to ease the practice of some old hoss doctor down in Tennessee if he can find the right place, and here is luck to him.

Vice-President, '15-'16; Secretary, '17.

Riverdale must have received an awful disappointment when "Hotz" came to town. Lewis, Sr., is a druggist and they say Ralph was born with a Materia Medica in his mouth. Anyway, his chief ambition is to return to his Alma Mater and teach his favorite subject.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

D. V. S., U. S. College of Veterinary Surgeons, 1916. Treasurer, '17.

ROBERT LEE NICHOLS.

MARYLAND.

Vice-President, '17; Entertainment Committee, Vet. Med. Assoc., '17.

"Nick" is another product of the "Old Line" State and is justly famous for his football methods in handling obstreperous animals. We understand there is soon to be a new shingle hanging up out Laurel way and we wish Nick every success together with lots of small five-cent pieces around the house.

Has recently been broken to work in double harness and wants to go to U. of P. to see if he has missed anything. Here's luck to you in both ventures, Walter.

HOWARD MAYO SAVAGE.

ILLINOIS.

A. B. Emporia College, 1899; Vice-President, '14; President, '15; Editor, '16; Vice-President, Vet. Med. Assoc., '16.

Howard opened his eyes somewhere out in Illinois, but has been on the move ever since. Served in the Spanish war and evidently liked the climate (or ladies) of the Philippines, for he remained there 8 years. Does not state his future plans, but should go in for dairy work on account of his fondness for "milk."

Senior Class History

On a memorable day, September 22, 1914, we, the Senior class of 1917, began our arduous duties in the College of Pharmacy. There seemed to be a perverted idea as to what our course in pharmacy consisted of, for right at the start we informed the professors that the course did not suit us, and a change must be made at once. But after being squelched on every occasion we decided to buckle down and follow the "Profs."

As the years passed by, some of our number fell by the wayside and others came in to fill up the gaps. Oftentimes we were tempted to give up in despair, but a glimpse back into the past encouraged us to go on until at the present time we are virtually knocking at the gates of the profession of pharmacy, with fluttering hearts and with weak voices, asking for admittance.

And now we come to the parting of the ways, when each must take his separate course. After the years have been spent in cementing friendships we must break those ties when we take anothr step upward.

Our day is drawing to a close and the 1917 pharmacists will soon be numbered with the yesterdays. But we must step lightly over the threshold of Commencement and face the problems beyond with a knowledge that if we spend the years to come ever true to the ethics of our profssion, we may be allowed at that last great graduation to say—

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

Pharmacy Seniors

WALTER NELSON BRADSHAW.

Would that he were rich instead of so beautiful so that some of us homely mortals might have a chance with the fair sex.

Someone heard "Al" laughing one day. On inquiring as to the cause of his mirth, he answered that he was enjoying a joke heard at Keith's several years ago. It took him two years but the main thing is—he got it. Will probably take a B. S. in chemistry next year.

WILLIAM E. DEMENT.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Sergeant-at-Arms, '17.

Another member of the Eastern High School delegation that enrolled back in 1914. Our chief dispenser of joy, who with "Bill" Bailey, formed the "Joy Duet"

WILLIAM ALBERT FRAILEY.

MARYLAND.

President, '17; Secretary, '16; Editor, '14.

ROBERT F. PETTIT.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Secretary and Treasurer, '17.

"Sailor Bob" joined us this year, but being a member of Uncle Sam's Navy, he was ordered away on a cruise in January. We mourn him as a man and a deep-sea story teller.

WILLIAM A. T. STEWART.

IDAHO.

"Spareribs" made his debut back in Idaho in 1913. He has made good with a vengeance since his advent into our midst. Was granted his license to practice pharmacy in January, 1917.

T. FRANKLIN WILLIAMS.

President, '15-'16.

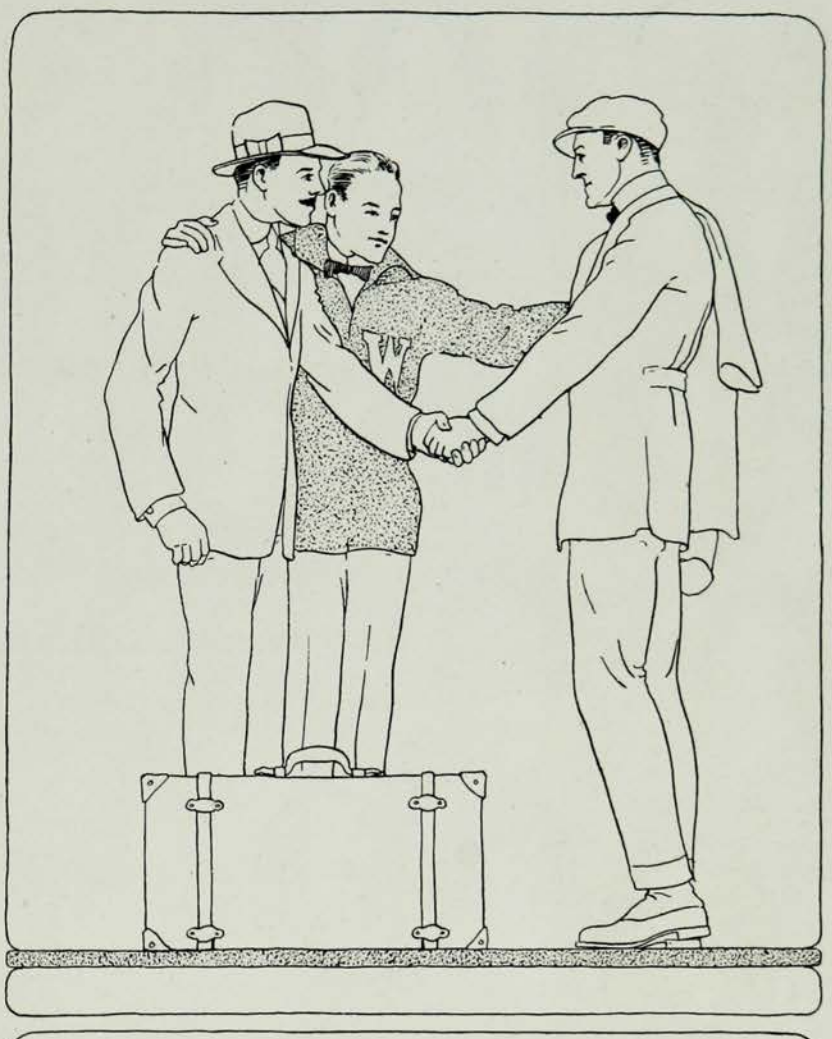

Born and raised in the Old Dominion near the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," Frank has been one of our leading lights. Received his license to practice pharmacy in his Freshman year. Will go into business for himself and we know he will make good.

Student Council

Student Council

The Student Council is that representativestudent body, subject to the general direction of the Faculty Committee on Student Activities, which is charged with the supervision and conduct of all student activities. Membership in the Council is of two classes; active and ex-officio; active members being selected by the students as representatives of the various departments, and appointed by the Faculty Committee, and ex-officio members, having all the privileges of active members but that of voting, representing the various major activities. The Council has but two officers, a President and Secretary-Treasurer, and three important standing committees, viz., those on Athletics, (Groesbeck, Med. 17, Chairman) ; on Publications, (Bixler, C. C., '17, Chairman) ; and on Social Activities, (Johnson, Phar. '17, Chairman), each charged by the Council with the supervision of a definite sphere of student interest.

During the past year, the first in the Council's existence, this body has successfully secured the necessary financial support for the revival of athletics and through its athletic committee has supervised this important phase of activity, has devised plans for arousing more interest in the University among students and members of the community at large, and cooperated with all the various agencies at work to give students life at G. W. U. more fullness and attractiveness. In these varied endeavors it has been uniformly successful, taking in all matters that broad and sympathetic attitude, so characteristic of the student body it represents.

George Washington Players

George Washington Players

One of the college activities which has firmly established itself in the hearts of the student body of the University as well as in the good graces of the community, has been fostered and developed to a high degree by the George Washington University Players. When, in May of 1916, this organization produced Louis N. Parker's "Disraeli" in a fashion which called forth the favorable criticism of the student body as well as that of critics of the theatre, it was apparent that the Players were launched upon a work which was soon to prove of advantage to themselves and to the University. When, in February, 1917, they gave a delightful portrayal of Augustin Daly's "A Night Off," the Players showed the broad scope of their theatrical activities. This play, as well as "Disraeli," was a financial and artistic success.

The activities of this organization are broadening. Having begun with only the aim to produce plays, they now have study circles, where members can meet to discuss the merits of current productions and enjoy the literature of the past. In connection with a course in playwriting at the University which they are advocating and with the course in the drama which is now being given at Columbian College, they intend to equip the assembly hall of Columbian College with the paraphernalia necessary to transform it into a small theatre. It is their intention there to produce plays from the pens of students, to have the performances directed by students, the scenery constructed by students, and the plays acted by student actors.

Such activities on the part of a college organization cannot fail to be important in the development of community spirit and culture, and in bringing the good work of George Washington University to the attention of colleges throughout the country. For this reason all students interested in any phase of the theatre—from playwriting and acting to the mechanics of the theatre—are urged to join this organization.

Coast Artillery Company

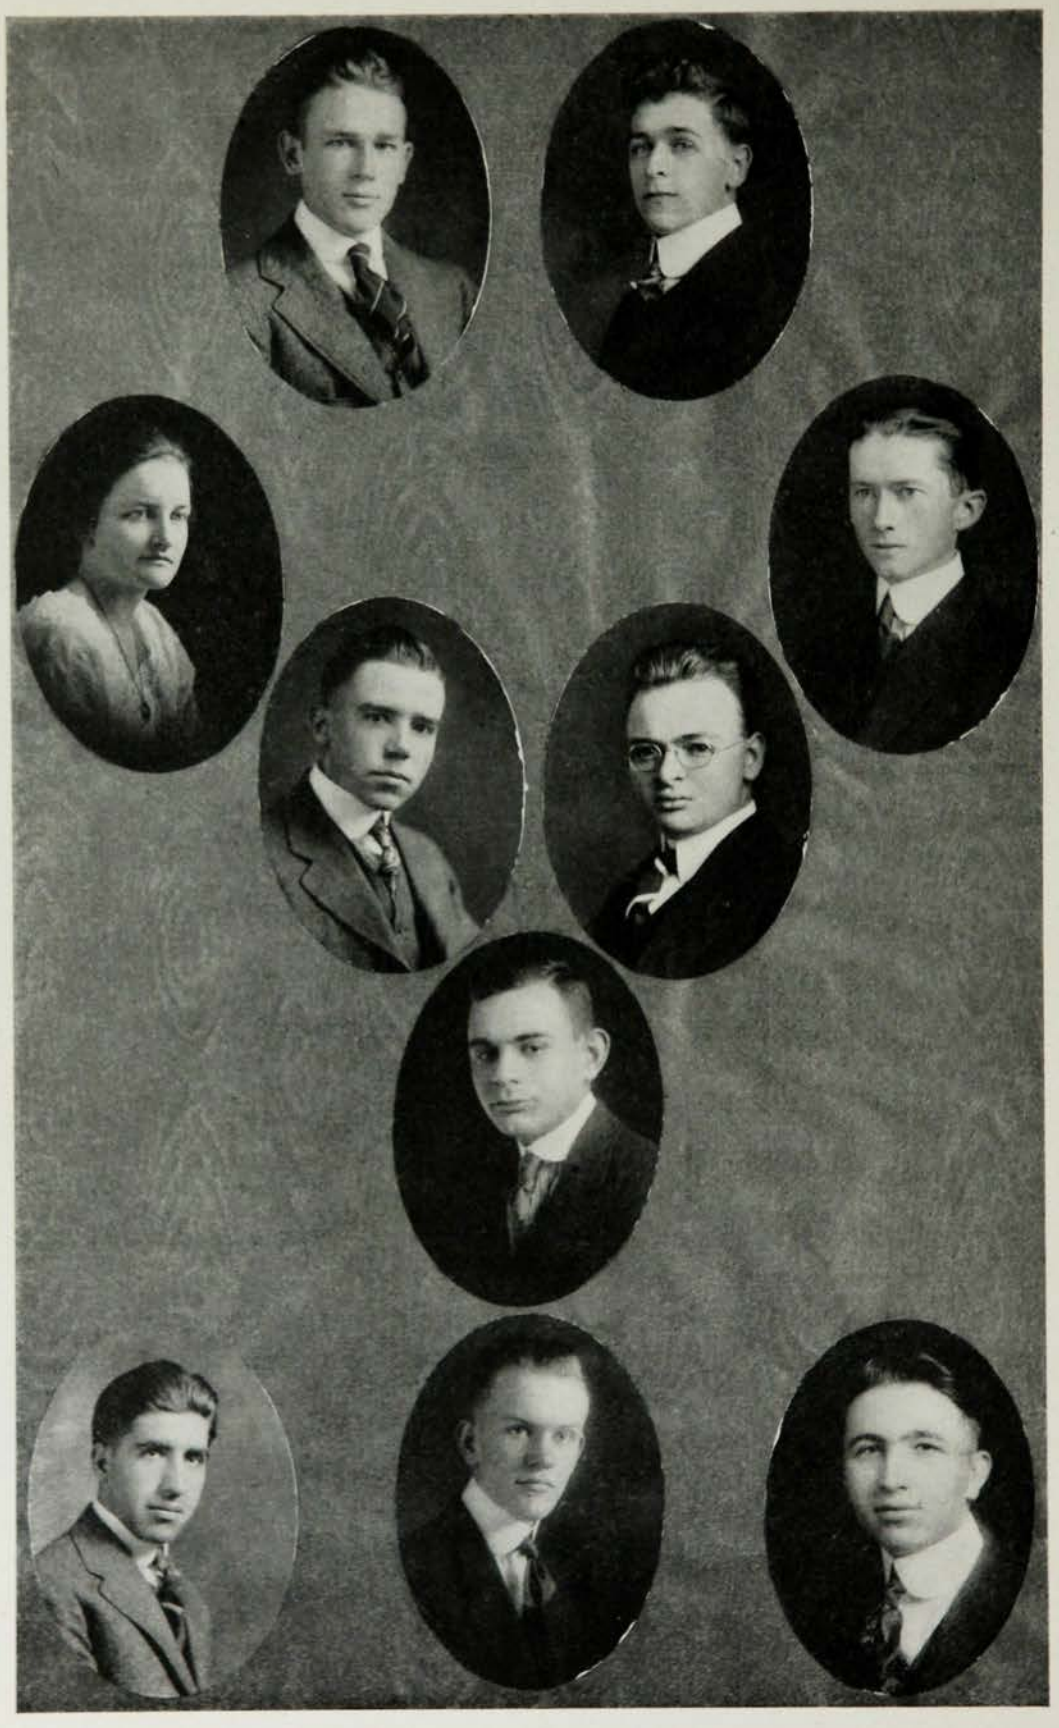

Coast Artillery Company

Beginning in the spring of 1915 with the suggestion of General Maxwell V. Z. Woodhull that the University form a military company, and being carried along with the hearty co-operation of President Stockton and the Board of Trustees, the Artillery Company was finally made a reality on December 8, 1915, when it was formally mustered into the service as the First Company, Coast Artillery Corps, National Guard of the District of Columbia. The enlistment was done in the University by a committee of students at first, but was later placed in charge of Mr. Walter W. Burns, who had held a commission in the Naval Militia and who was nominated for captain of the company by the committee in charge. Enlistments were rapid and when the company was mustered in the number of men was well over the required 65. Mr. Burns was commissioned as captain after passing the necessary examination and immediately started the company on its way.

After holding competitive examinations for the positions, Chester C. Baxter and Howard W. Hodgkins were respectively commissioned first and second lieutenants. The noncommissioned officers were appointed and the men started in drilling at their quarters in the National Guard armory on First street. There the company has sufficient room and equipment to carry on the range finding work such as is done at the forts, and during the winter season instruction classes are held there to prepare the men for the examinations for first class gunner and other ratings in the service. During the spring and summer months the company makes frequent week-end trips to Fort Washington, Md., where it has barracks for its accommodation and a battery of ten-inch guns, Battery Humphreys, to drill on. The battery is completely equipped with the best of everything, and the company goes through the drill with the disappearing guns and range-finding apparatus just as would be done in war time.

The opportunities presented by the company work for fitting men to become officers in case of war are unusually fine and form no small feature of the many attractions offered by the company. The work is interesting as a whole and many of the details will be attractive to men of technical or scientific training. The outdoor drills, the week-end trips to Fort Washington, the indoor instruction in the winter season, and the annual encampment with its target practice with the big guns should be enough to make it well worth while to join the company.

Plans are on foot for a concert in the spring.

The G. W. Art Society was organized last year and in a short time has developed into a potent organization. It has been the purpose of the society to hold itself in readiness to supply all the art material needed in connection with the student activities of the University. The society has rendered invaluable aid through its poster work to the Women's University Culb, the G. W. Players, the Glee Club, the Hatchet, and the Cherry Tree. The members have worked hard to make the year book an artistic success and a book which truly represents the work of the student body.

It will be seen that the work of the society has been varied and has brought out ability that has heretofore been latent. It has stimulated the "do something for your school" spirit and the time is near when the Art Society will be recognized as one of the vital organizations of old G. W. U.

We are a very serious organization. Think of the name, The Engineering Society. It suggests higher mathematics, wheels and cogs, bridges and railways, steam turbines and dynamos. Then look at the picture. We're not so sure that $\Sigma M = O$ but Prof. Dunston says it is. And further, when a man has designed an artificial island to be used for a trans-oceanic aeroplane station or the details of the wireless distribution of electric power for heat and light, he must do something to make people think he is serious.

Engineering Society

This year, just to keep our hand in, we revised our constitution, decreasing the moment of inertia of the moving parts by providing for the election of the new officers at the end of the school year instead of at the beginning of the next, and increasing the stiffness of the lower chord members of our treasury by raising the dues. Then we have heard several talks on various topics. One by "our own Dean" on "The Relationship Between the Engineer and the Public;" another by Mr. John S. Crandall on the "Use of Refined Tars in Road Construction," illustrated by motion pictures showing, among other things, negroes at work surfacing roads. Then we went up to the New Central High School and Mr. Thomas A. Maguire, Heating and Ventilating Engineer of the District, explained the heating plant of the school, which he designed and which is one of the most modern plants in the country, incidently showing the girls' swimming pool and "Gym." That is about all we have done up to the present writing except put up a bulletin board where we can post all kinds of mysterious information unintelligible to any but the initiated, and start to equip our little club room at 2027 G street.

And then the banquet! It was some event. President C. H. Stockton told us that women were out for all kinds of work and that the men would have to get a hustle on to keep their jobs. He also mentioned the fact that a good engineer—is there any such animal?—could succeed in any other line of work. The Dean spoke on "broader education" for engineers—which means that most of us would be gray-haired before we got out of college, noting by the way how little we know of mathematics in general. Prof. Dunstan told us a Sunday School story and "Dick" Richards was wearing his best smile because certain villains could not pour water down his pocket. Eat? Of course not! Why eat at a banquet?

But to read the crystal of the future! We are going to take some more trips; one to the Sewage Pumping Station, where we will see the big pumps; and to the Bennings power plant and Heurich's Brewery——Dark? No indeed! we are just going to examine the refrigerating plant.

Then a final glimpse of our room at 2027. Curtains, rugs, magazine-shelves, easy chairs, pennants and that picture on the wall, electric fan, and a crowd all around the mission table which is covered with——Yes! We are very serious.

The meetings of the school year opened in October with the usual address of welcome to the new members and old, by our Honorary President, Professor Munroe. As a topic of chemical interest in war time, Professor Munroe gave us his personal impressions of the munition explosion at Black Tom Island, New York harbor, of which he made an official investigation.

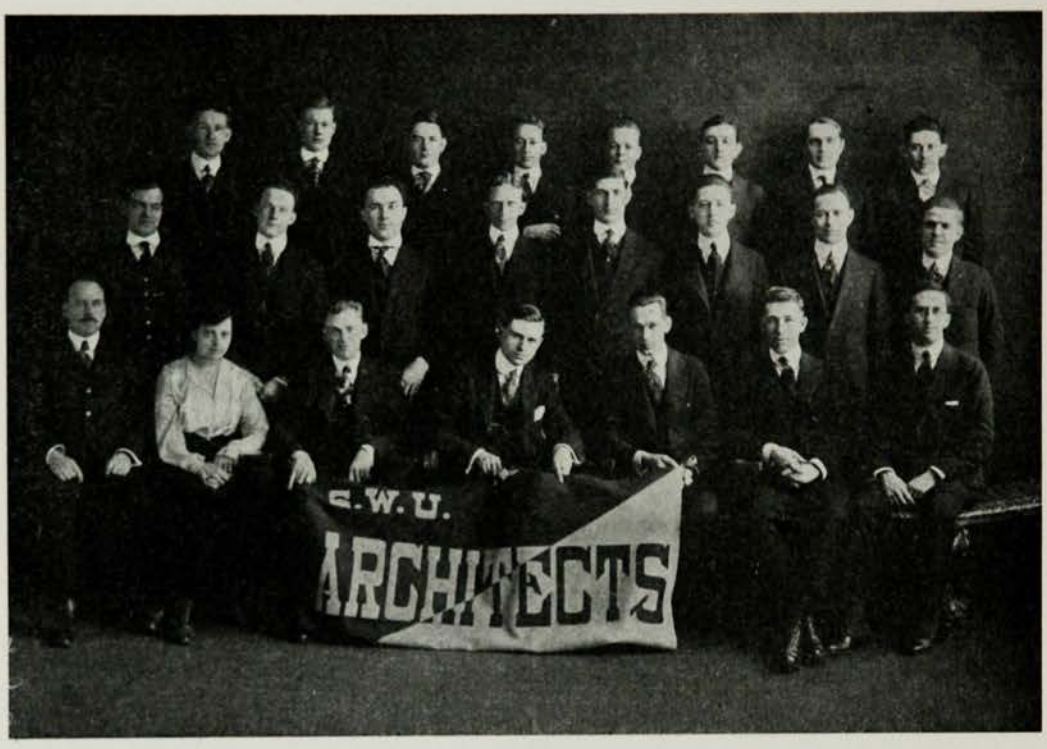

Our president, Paul H. Cathcart, has been away from us the past year, serving Uncle Sam on the Mexican border with "Troop A," our crack college organization. During his absence, Vice President Paul H. Brattain has acted as President with the greatest success. In a similar situation, our Treasurer, Carl F. Snyder, being one of the Faculty and unable to serve, Reuben Schmidt of the Executive Committee volunteered to be the watchdog of the Treasury.

The Society takes this opportunity to express its keen regret in the death of one of its most active members and former President, Mr. John F. Brockwell.

Papers on the subject of "Mushrooms" and the "Manufacture of Paper," were given at the November and December meetings by Messrs. Middleton and Heindl respectively. During January and February papers on "Tanning" and "Chemical Theories on the Origin of Light," by Messrs. Diesman and McDermott were given. A very interesting and instructive demonstration of "Liquid Air" was given by Mr. Ford of the Bureau of Standards at the open meeting of the Society.

In February we had a most successful demonstration of the chemistry of pure food at The Ebbitt, under the guidance of George Washington Phillips as Toastmaster.

The year 1905 saw the birth of another student club at George Washington University, the Architectural Club. Through the energy and spirit of its members it has become recognized as one of the leading organizations in the student activities of the University.

It is an established fact that the successful training of architects depends as much upon the inspirations and ideas which they receive through their association with fellow students in Architecture as from what they may acquire through the ordinary channels of study. It was upon this principle that the Club was founded. The Club comprises nearly every student in Architecture in the University and the names of many of the prominent members of the profession in Washington may be found on its roster. To the energy displayed by these latter in their efforts to improve the courses in Architecture may be attributed the present high standard of this Department of the University. The local chapter of the American Institute of Architects through Prof. A. L. Harris has also aided the work of the students in many ways, principally by the donation of their entire library to the University. The club was favored with many entertaining, as well as instructive lectures on architecture and its allied subjects through the kindness of some of the leading authorities in the city. In the field of scholastic achievements during the past year the Club is most strongly represented by G. A. Daidy and W. T. Conboy, recipients of "First Mentions" from the Beaux Arts Society of New York in competition with practically all the large universities throughout the country. The social activities are best exemplified by the numerous unique dance parties given, and by the annual banquet of the Club.

In brief, the year 1916-17 saw a successful fulfillment of the purpose for which the Club was founded.

With the growth of student activities came the need for a University band, and at the call for musicians the above artists started rehearsing early in the fall under the leadership of David Davis.

The band led the boys on the field at the football games, and made the W. U. C. mixer a huge success by its classical rendering of the popular dance music. It was very "instrumental" to the success of "A Night Off," and filled in the quiet moments at the basketball games with music that set the crowds swaying. The "Rube Band" contributed much to the minstrel show and the dance following.

Much credit is due Director Davis for his faithful service and the success which crowned his efforts.

GERTRUDE WALTER, '19 ..... Treasurer.

The Women's University Club is gradually coming into its own. For several years the scope, purpose and probable result of this women's club were rather vague. But the year 1917 has shown the University that as a means of furthering social activities the W. U. C. is a success.

It's greatest accomplishment is the bringing together of students from all departments on certain occasions, and here we find a "Vet" being very attentive to one of our girls in the Teachers College and a "Medic" reveling in a conversation with a Columbian College co-ed.

The club holds two receptions each year for the entire student body. These are appropriately called "Mixers." Then the club has charge of the organization of the girls in each class, who in turn act as hostesses for the club. This arrangement has given rise to many original stunts, and many good times have been had behind the chapel doors.

"The Legal Aid Society of the George Washington University" was organized in March, 1914, by Prof. Everett Fraser, the present Dean of the Law School.

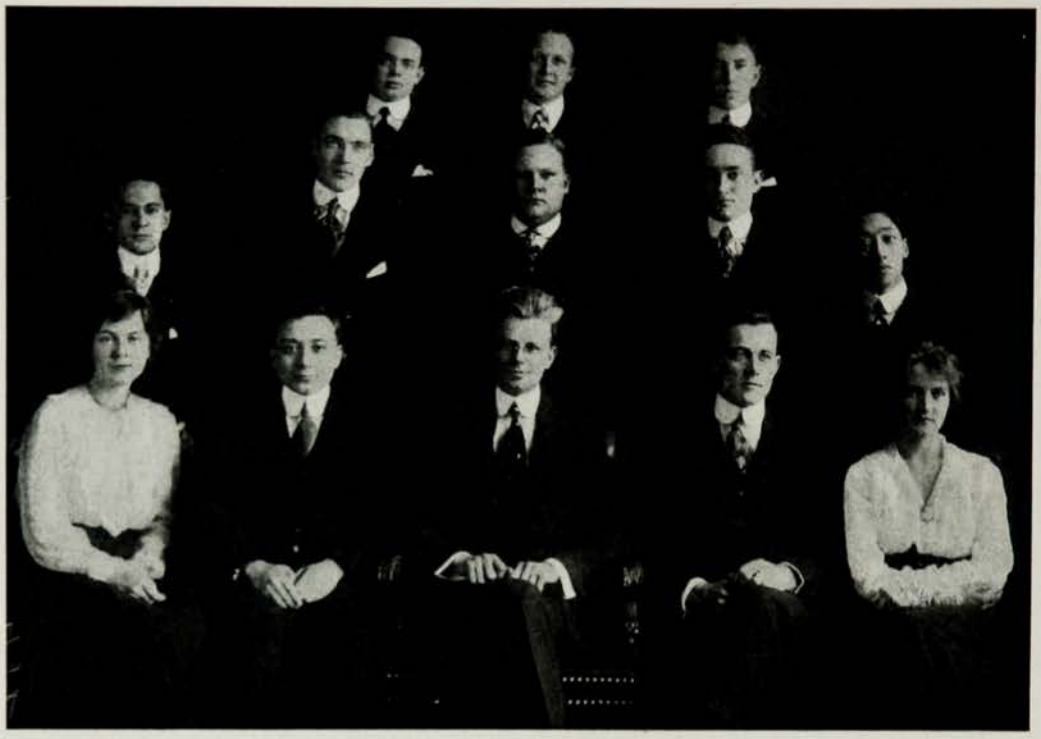

Its object and purpose are to render legal aid and assistance gratuitously if necessary to all persons who appear worthy thereof and who from poverty are unable to procure it. Incidentally, it offers to the student members of the Society practical advantages and experience in addition to those realized from their regular law course.

The membership consists of second and third year and graduate students of the Law School who are selected by the Executive Committee of the organization from nominations made by the Faculty on a basis of scholarship. In addition to its active membership, the Society also has associate members, selected from graduates of the Law School in active practice in the city.

The organization is managed through an Executive Committee composed of the Chairman, the Secretary-Treasurer, a Faculty member, and an alumnus in active practice. Cases are brought before this committee for acceptance or rejection by the Society, and whenever court proceedings become necessary the committee assigns an associate member to take charge of the case.

Since March, 1914, over two hundred applications for legal assistance have been received and acted upon.

The Walter Clark Law Club was organized in February, 1916, by a group of students of the Law School for the purpose of carrying on supplementary work in legal discussion and research. With this as the prime motive, a congenial group of students was gotten together who have worked to further the interests of the University in general.

Membership in the club is conferred only upon those who have attained a high scholarship standing and in this way has proved an incentive for study and application.

The work of the club is carried on chiefly through regular meetings at which court sessions are held. Four members of the club act as attorneys and the remainder sit as justices, with a member of the faculty as chief justice.

The club is named after Walter Clark, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, and a distinguished alumnus of the Law School.

The club has been greatly encouraged in its work by the faculty who have continually lent aid and co-operation.

An association organized during the session of 1908-1909 to promote a closer relationship between the students and the profession, the Veterinary Medical Association, continues to be an attractive feature of the Veterinary Department. Enjoying the privileges of its membership are the Faculty and Alumni of the college as honorary members, and the student body as active members.

During the course of the year leading members of the profession and honorary members are frequently heard, and each active member is given an opportunity to submit a paper dealing with some subject of interest in veterinary medicine. These papers are open to general discussion and criticism after presentation. In this way much is accomplished in instilling confidence and overcoming that terrible sensation of stage fright which is experienced more or less in facing an audience for the first few times. General benefit is derived from interesting points brought out in debate, and the faculty of thinking quickly and answering intelligently without losing self-poise is developed.

The meetings are held monthly, and being in every sense a student affair without class distinction, Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen meet on common ground and work shoulder to shoulder for the development of the organization. Naturally the bonds of friendship are strengthened between members of different classes and many new ones formed. A general good time is always had, there being several entertainers of reputation among the members, and the entertainment committee add the climax with the "eats" they produce.

Enjoying as it has the prosperity of the Veterinary Department, it stands for the promotion and steady advancement of that department; commensurate with this stand, as in the past, it gives its solid support for all things worth while and the welfare of George Washington University.

Debate—1917

The 1916-17 debating season for George Washington opened with a debate against an ancient "enemy," the University of North Carolina, on December 18, 1916, at the Public Library, on the question: "Resolved, That Congress should pass a law requiring compulsory arbitration of all controversies arising between employers and employees of railroads engaged in interstate commerce, constitutionality waived." North Carolina submitted this question and we chose the negative. A team composed of H. W. Kidder, G. L. Hall, and Louis M. Denit as alternate, won the decision for George Washington by a majority vote of a board of three judges, who were as follows: Hon. Frederick A. Delano, vice governor of the Federal Reserve Board; Hon. Josiah A. Van Orsdel, associate justice of the Court of Appeals, and Hon. R. C. Allen, U. S. Tribal Attorney, from Muskogee, Okla. Senator Chas. F. Johnson, of Maine, presided. Excellent musical entertainment was furnished by Chester LaFollette on the violin.

The North Carolina debaters were so satisfied with their defeat that they have expressed a desire to enroll in our University in the Department of Law.

The next debate (at the present writing), will be with Washington and Jefferson College, in this city, on April 5, 1917. George Washington will argue the affirmative of the question, "Resolved, That the Unnited States should adopt universal military service." Just one week later, on April 12, 1917, we will support the affirmative of a similar question against the University of Pittsburgh, which defeated us last year. The only difference between the two questions is that the second one proposes a system of universal military training instead of service. Of applicants for places on the team which will represent us in these two debates, the following were selected: W. E. Kemp, Talma L. Smith, H. S. Taylor, H. M. Brock and A. C. Wilkins. The last two were chosen as alternates, but it is probable that they will speak at the second debate with one of the first three men named.

The University debating council for this year consists of Pgad B. Morehouse, chairman and coach; Prof. LeRoy M. Ferson, Delta Sigma Rho representative; Prof. J. L. Parks, faculty representative; H. W. Cornell, Columbian Society representative, and William Gilligan, representative from the Enosinian Literary Society, Arts and Science department.

Through their encouragement and support of debating activities, the president of this University, the board of trustees and the faculties have recognized the desirability of intercollegiate debates as promoting a friendly spirit of competition on intellectual grounds, with other universities, thereby accelerating progress and enhancing the prestige of George Washington University. It is the concensus of opinion that debating in this University has become established, and that this factor of its power will progress as each year rolls by toward the inevitable time when George Washington will rank among the foremost universities of the world.

For thirty years the Columbian Debating Society has been working out the purpose of its being, that of teaching the dumb to speak. The Society also gives to its members a knowledge of parliamentary usage, a broad insight into the big public questions, and a fellowship with men of kindred hopes and needs.

As years roll by the list of debaters of intercollegiate caliber developed by the Columbian grows more and more noteworthy. This year seven of the eight men chosen to represent G. W. U. are members of the Columbian Debating Society.

Each year the Society gives a banquet and never has one attended the Columbian social function without carrying away many fond remembrances of the occasion. This year the banquet was held on February 17, at the Dewey Hotel. Forty couples made merry and rejoiced that this organization of serious purpose has withal a friendly heart.

Football---1917

COACH SULLIVAN

The Varsity opened the season on October 7, against St. Johns Military Academy at Annapolis, Md. The squad had practiced only two weeks before the game and so no one was disappointed in the score. The game was rather ragged in parts and showed the lack of team work, but the result showed that G. W. had a team that would fight to the end. This victory was all that was needed to put confidence in the men which up to this time had been lacking.

Coaching began in dead earnest the week following this game and the team made rapid strides. The next game at Gettysburg showed that the squad was far from being in condition to meet Georgetown on Thanksgiving. The score does not do justice to the fine playing which was put up by the Varsity. This dampened the spirits of the men but made the team work all the harder.

It was "Dig-Dig-Dig" for the next week and a big score against Western Maryland was expected, but the team got into a slump, and in a miserably played game, lost by a single drop-kick. It was a bitter pill to swallow but did not discourage the G. W. rooters.

A large sized "Grouch" was developed by Coach Sullivan which was taken out on the men during the next few days. This seemed to agree with the squad for they redeemed themselves against the strong Johns Hopkins team. The odds were against G. W. before the game but this made the Varsity fight the more. The John Hopkins men were played off their feet and never once threatened the Buff and Blue goal. Football "dope" was the main conversation in the smoking rooms and corridors and the rooters were chuck full of enthusiasm.

The next game was a big victory for G. W. although the score read 0-0. Urisinus was one of the strongest teams of Pennsylvania and its reputation was well deserved. The Varsity had the "do or die" spirit that Saturday and played the Pennsylvanians to a standstill. This game was one of the big surprises of the season for the football critics had predicted a bad defeat for G. W. Georgetown "money" which was plentiful before this game began to disappear after the game.

The Eastern College game was a walk-away for the Buff and Blue. Many second string men were used which kept the score down to 21 to 0. This was the last game before Thanksgiving, and hopes were high for a good game with the Hilltoppers. The faces at football headquarters began to take on a grim expression as the last lap was reached before the Big Game.

GIBLIN.

Georgetown G. W. Game

The G. W. warriors covered themselves with glory (and mud) in their final game with Georgetown, Thanksgiving Day, by scoring the first touchdown that set the G. W. stands wild with excitement. Neiderhauser did the trick by recovering a Georgetown fumble and racing half the length of the field through Georgetown tacklers who were disposed of by the excellent interference of E. Harmon. Neiderhauser had always been considered a very dangerous man when the ball was free, and made good with a vengeance. This success was rather premature, however, as Gilroy took the G. W.'s kick-off back the length of the field for a touchdown that tied the score for the remainder of the first quarter. The Georgetown machine started working smoothly the second quarter and put over three touchdowns, but was held in check better the second half.

GIACOMO.

The score of 47-7 does not give a good idea at all of the character of the game, which was hard-fought from the first to last whistle. It was the best game played on the Georgetown field this year.

Every man played a game worthy of the Buff and Blue, and some outshone all their past performances. Capt. Hillis was a most reliable ball carrier, and his punting far outshone that of his opponent, Maloney. Giacomo played quarter and half back in fine style, both in offense and defense. Kerr played brilliantly, particularly in running down under punts, and he and Neiderhauser did some pretty work in coming down on Gilroy from each side of the field, sidestepping the interference and nailing him after he had received long punts. Georgetown had little success against our solid line, and had to rely on their short and long end runs for gains. Giblin was well matched with the opposing center, who wasn't allowed to do any damage. Genessee was a thorn in Georgetown's side in breaking up their plays.

The big game started at 2.30 sharp when Georgetown kicked to G. W. who advanced the ball to midfield. Georgetown gained the ball on downs but fumbled, Neiderhauser recovered for his sensational dash for a touchdown. Giacomo kicked the goal from touchdown and the score stood 7-0, when Hillis sent the ball almost to Georgetown's goal on the kick-off. Gilroy took the ball and sprinted down the field evading G. W.'s tacklers for a touchdown and a goal that tied the score for the remainder of the quarter.

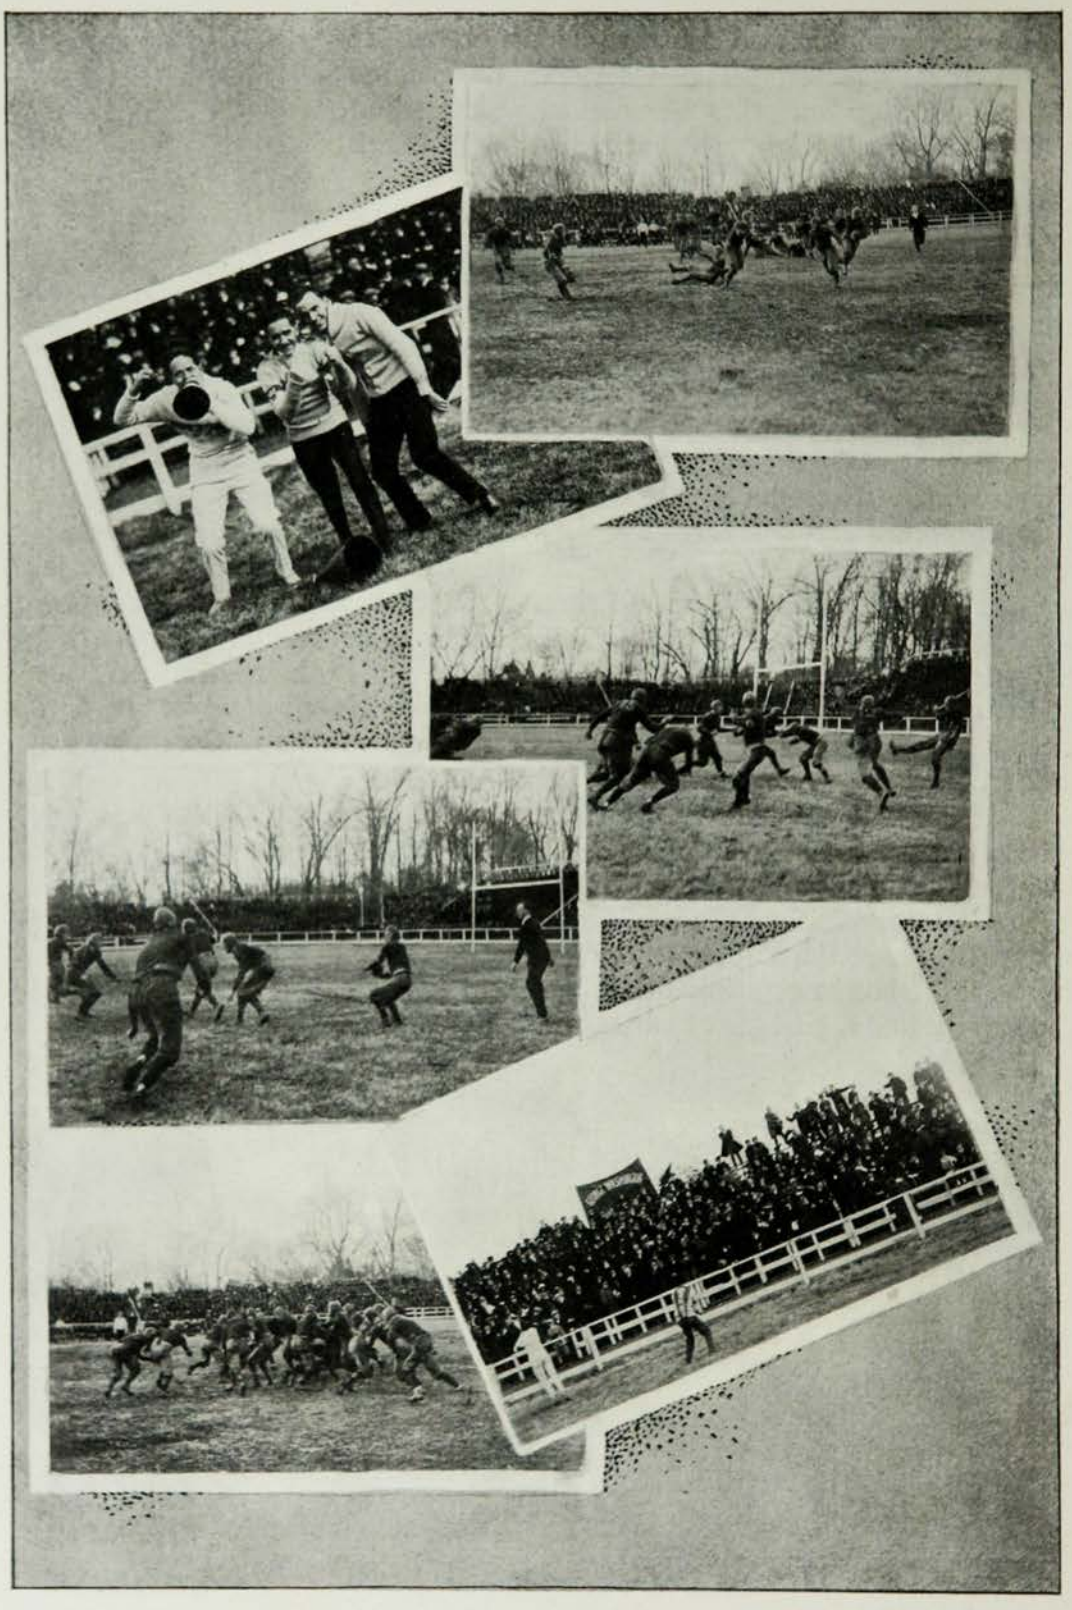

GENESSEE.

E. HARMON.

HEFFERMAN.

NIEDERHAUSER

G. W. was slowly forced back until they were but a few yards from their goal when the period ended.

Georgetown started the second quarter by forcing the ball over for another touchdown. A third one soon followed and a fourth was added when G. W. fumbled and Georgetown recovered. The score for the first half was 20-7.

G. W. held better the third quarter and Georgetown could only get one touchdown over.

The last period opened with the ball in Georgetown's possession and after several assaults on the line Georgetown shot a forward pass for another touchdown. Receiving the kick-off G. W. opened up, but failed to gain and kicked to Gilroy, who was downed in his tracks. He took the ball in the next scrimmage and plowed down the field behind a perfect interference for the last touchdown. Deprived of Gilroy, who was knocked out by a hard tackle, Georgetown could make no substantial gains and the game ended 47-7 against the Buff and Blue. It was not expected that the team would win against the wonderful machine of the Blue and Grey, so no one was very much disappointed. And so closed the first season of football that G. W. has had for six years.

TOUCHDOWN!
NIEDERHAUSER—GEORGETOWN GAME

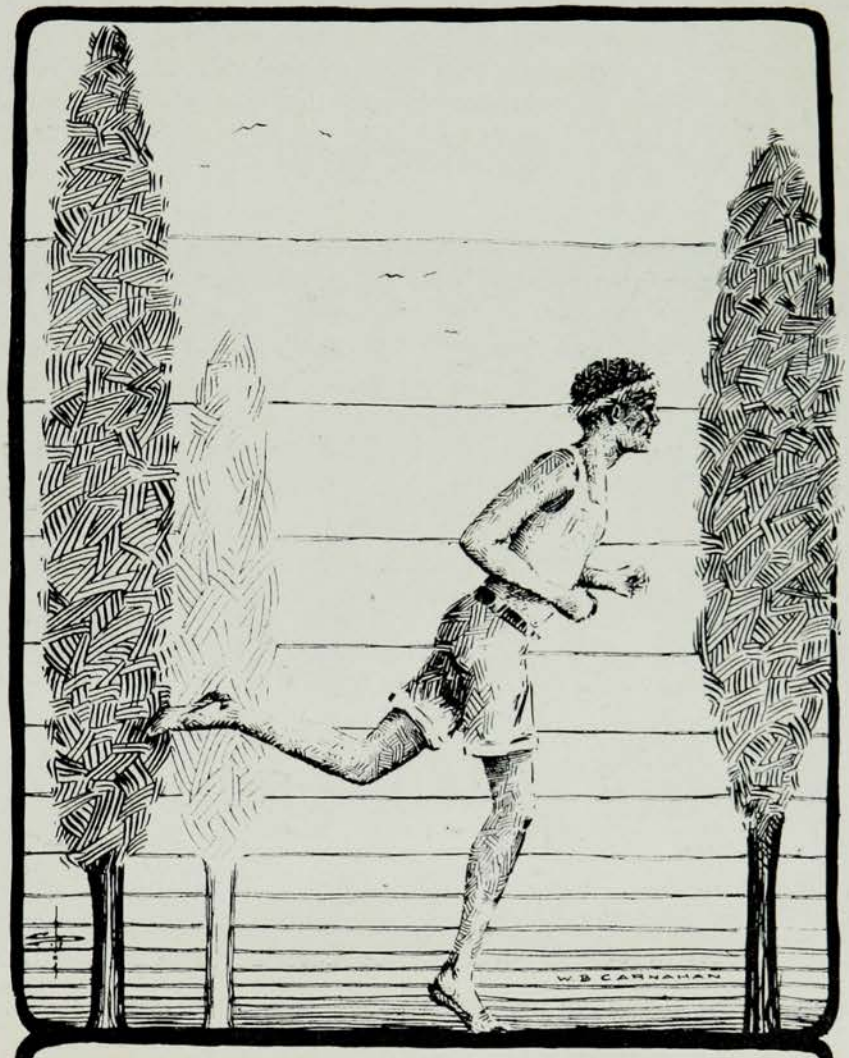

The followers of the Buff and Blue are highly elated over the success of the football season. After a lapse of six years an exceptionally good team was whipped into shape by Coach Sullivan. Our coach came to us from Colgate, and true to traditions instilled into the little band of warriors that fighting spirit for which Colgate is noted. Sullivan was ably assisted in his work by Tully Garner, student manager; Hyman Shapiro and Charley Prettyman, assistant managers. It was ony necessary for one to be a bystander at practice to feel that the above managers had a more strenuous training than the players. Captain Hillis came to us from Oberlin College and from the start held the respect and admiration of the men.

Never before in the history of the University has so much college spirit and enthusiasm been evident. All the games, both at home and out of town, were well attended and cheer leaders Lynch, Underwood and Ramsey had their hands full controlling the noise.

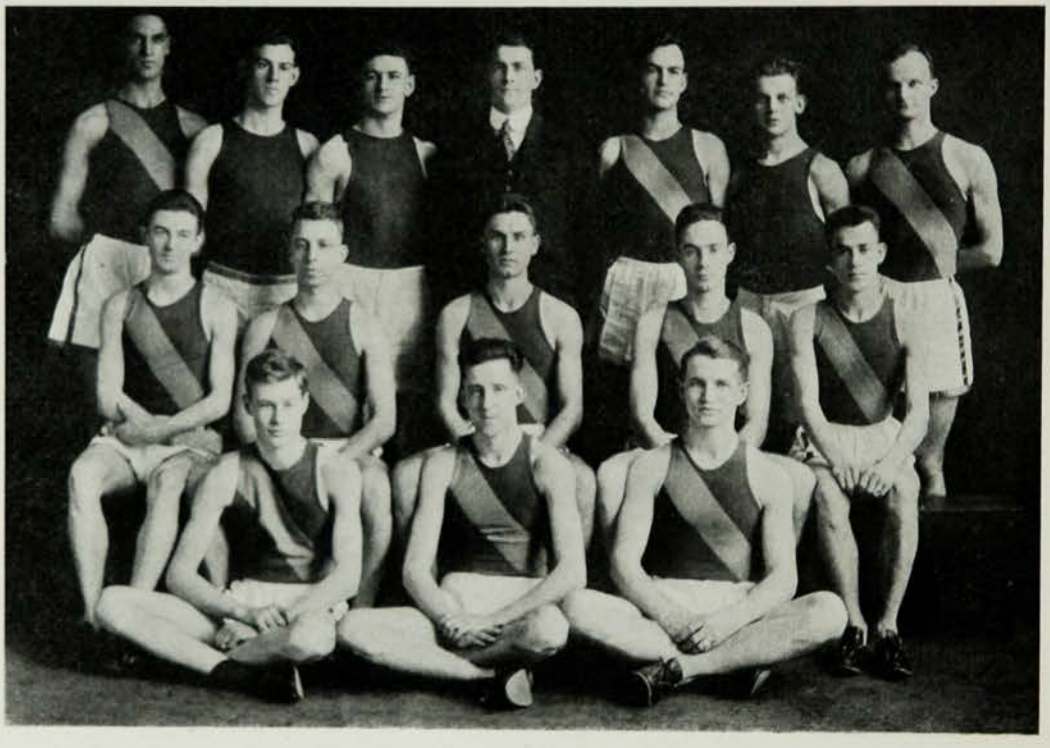

The prospects for the 1918 season are very good. Several of the varsity men of this year will be back and the success of the team is sure to prove an attraction for other good men.

Track—1917

For the first time in the history of the University, the George Washington track team won the annual indoor games of the University, held on March 2nd, and in addition won their relay race with the Carlisle Indians in the feature event of the evening. Further, the University is credited with having held the best indoor meet seen in Washington for years.

The contest for the point trophy was not decided until the last event on the program was over. After Morrison and Wingate had won fourth and fifth in the South Atlantic Intercollegiate pole vault, Kilmartin started the scoring in the open events for George Washington by winning the mile open in a clever race, which delighted the George Washington rooters. When the high jump started, after the completion of the track events, Hopkins had twelve points and George Washington only five. In this event our most consistent performers, Morrison and Wingate, took first and second places respectively, Hopkins not scoring. This won the eight points necessary for George Washington to overcome Hopkins' lead.

Following this event, and utterly unconscious of the victory of their team mates, the relay team faced the Carlisle Indians in the final and feature event of the evening. Victory again fell to the Buff and Blue, but only after a gruelling and spectacular race that brought all the spectators to their feet. James, leading off, dropped about eight yards to his opponent. Scott, running second, closed up a little and turned the race over to Marshall Johnson, who caught his man on the second lap, but could not pass, touching off Captain Harsch on the heels of Ben Guyon, the Carlisle anchor man. Harsch passed the redskin on the first turn and opened up a lead that his opponent, regardless of his best efforts, could not overcome, and came home a winner by five yards, greeted by a great outburst of cheering from the crowd.

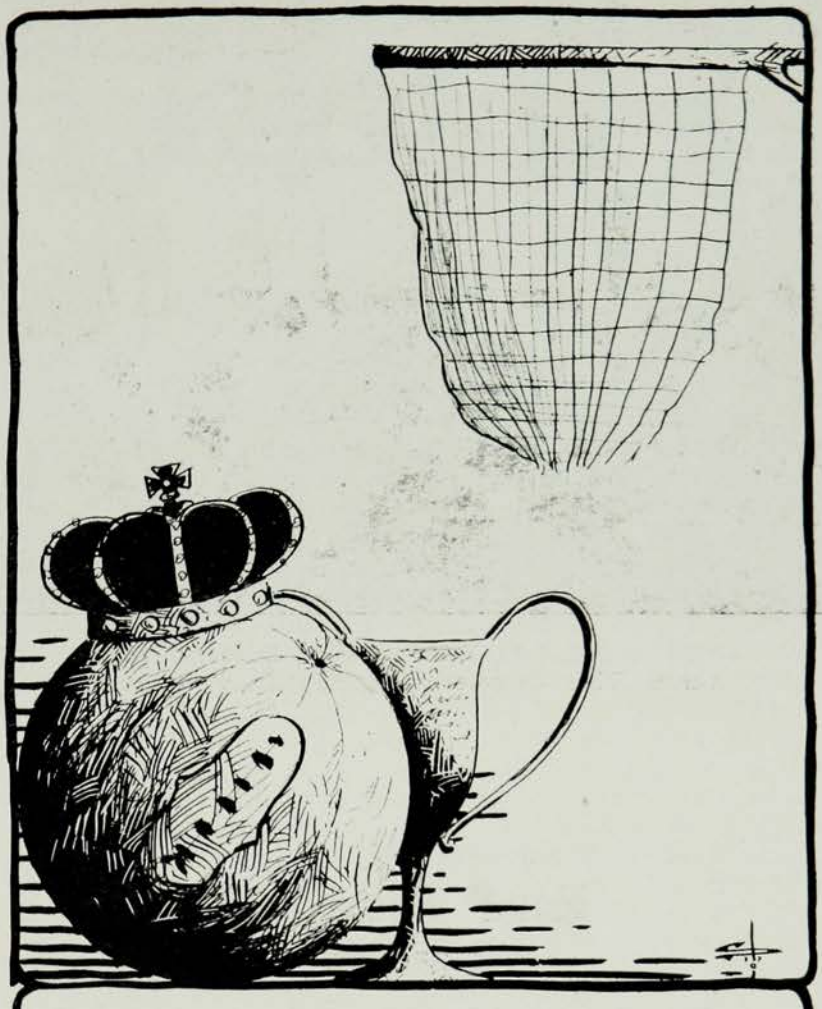

The phenomenal success of the team in the last indoor meet of the season was presaged by its performances in the other meets. Opening the season with the Georgetown meet, George Washington scored only in the high jump, "Mike" Wingate tying for third in the South Atlantic high jump, though Kilmartin ran a good fourth against a fast field in the mile open. The relay team ran against Catholic University's fast quartet in what promised to be the best of the collegiate relays. James, George Washington's lead-off man, took the lead and held it easily for two laps, when a tendon in his foot gave way, causing a bad fall a few seconds later. Scott, Johnson and Harsch, though running splendidly, could not make up the twenty yards thus lost. The same team a week later met Catholic University, St. John's College and the Maryland State Reserves in a relay race at the Johns Hopkins and Fifth Regiment games in Baltimore. Penalized four yards on a false start, George Washington took third place about ten yards back of Catholic University and St. Johns, who finished inches apart, beating the Maryland State Reserves with many yards to spare, thus evening the score with the team that won from us last year in the George Washington indoor games. Morrison and Wingate proved themselves good running mates by taking second and third places in the open high jump in this meet.

Much credit is due to the small squad of track men who made victory possible and especially to Manager James and Captain Harsch. Besides giving George Washington a meet "the best held in this section of the country during the year," James was also lead-off man on the relay. His unfortunate accident in the first contest of the season prevented him from doing himself justice in the other meets. Captain Harsch proved himself a most capable quarter miler and the star of the squad. Lack of capable team mates prevented Harsch from having a chance last year, but he has had a fair chance this year, with a chance for even better prospects next year. Most of this year's squad will be in the University next year and under the direction of a professional coach will certainly develop a team that should be heard from.

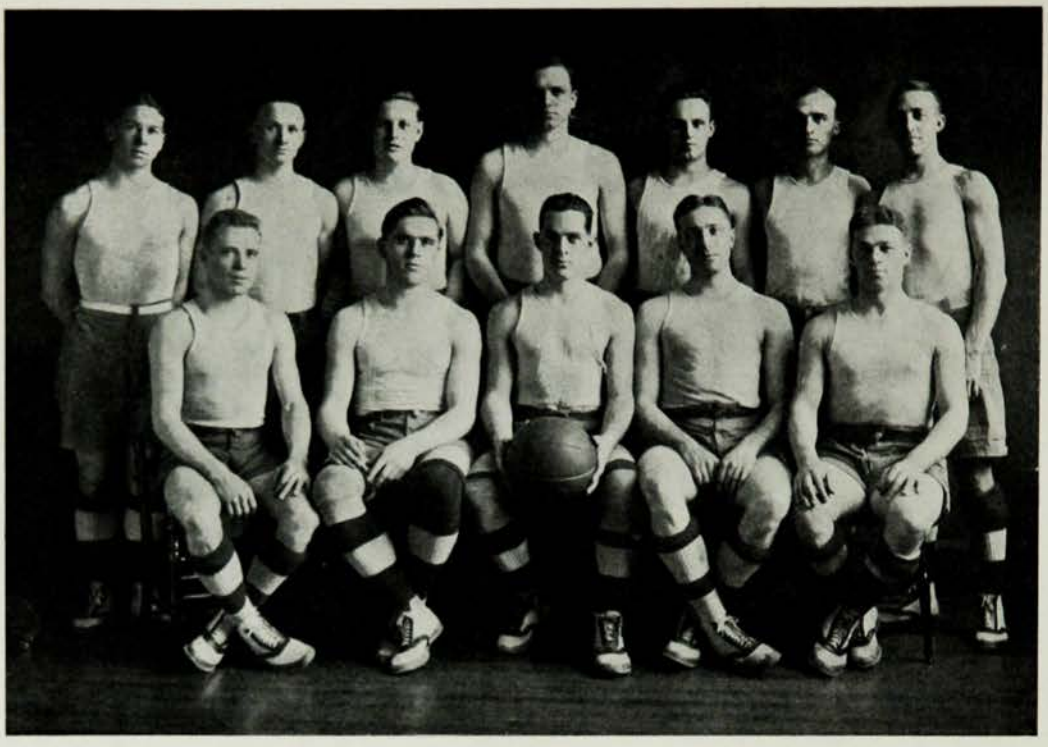

Professor Halsey, of the College of Engineering, coached the squad during the early part of the season, but stress of school work prevented his continuing the work. Then Dr. Robert Eller, of the Dental School, coached the squad until after the Georgetown meet, when press of office work prevented his further aid. Both these men showed sincere interest in the track squad which the men on the squad thoroughly appreciated.

A brief history of last year's track work may throw some light on this year's developments. When Professor McNemar called for candidates for the 1916 indoor team, Harsch, James, Scott, Alexander, and Wingate were among those who came out. The first four of these men represented George Washington on the relay team. Wingate, entering the high jump during the indoor season. These men, all novices, were outclassed in the indoor meets, but plugged away outdoors on their own initiative and at their own expense. They entered the "Penn" relays and the Maryland State meet. In the relays they were badly beaten, having been placed in a very fast class. In the Maryland State meet a week later they scored eight points, Wingate tieing for first in the high jump, equaling the record for the meet, and preventing Maryland State from winning first place in every event. Alexander finished second in the mile and James third in the 220 yard dash. Harsch, running in the quarter, was boxed, nad could not do better than fourth. Following this meet, Harsch was elected captain and James manager for the 1917 season, with the results mentioned previously.

Mr. H. W. Hodgkins, director of athletics, who has had much previous experience in the handling of indoor meets and who has taken active interest in the track work, was the one who laid the real basis for the success of this year's meet. Professor Halsey, of the faculty committee on athletics, strongly supported track interests and kindly acted as clerk of the course in this year's meet. Special mention is due to Mr. L. H. VanKirk, assistant manager of track, who worked tirelessly on the plans for the meet, and also their carrying out. Also to assistant managers H. L. Strang and Henry Ravenel, without whose able assistance the details of the meet could not have been mastered so fully.

Boys' Basketball

The 1917 basketball season was the most successful in the history of George Washington University. Of the fifteen games scheduled seven were won and eight lost. The home games were played at the Y. M. C. A. and large crowds were present on all occasions. Cheer Leaders Underwood and Ramsey brought forth the spirit which has been dormant in the student body and the University Band filled up the few idle moments with strains of popular rags.

George Daidy was appointed manager of the team, with J. C. Leonard and David B. Todd as assistants. Bertram Groesbeck, who has played for the Buff and Blue for the past three years, was captain, and kept the team in fine shape. Coach Colliflower, a former Georgetown star, did very creditable work, and no doubt will have charge of the team next season. Harmon was elected captain for next year, and judging from his work this year he will have a great team to represent the Buff and Blue.

Girls' Basketball

This year has shown a decided advance in girls' basketball at G. W. U. The team was very fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. Eva Baker Lewis as coach, and the Ephiphany gym for weekly practices. This year double headers were arranged with the varsity team at the Y. M. C. A. and an extensive trip was made through the north.

The following girls will receive letters at the close of the season: Guards, Charlotte Stimpson, Margaret Bristow, Elizabeth Davis, Mgr.; centers, Ella Gardner, Gertrude Fogerty; forwards, Emma Reh, Gertrude Walter, Theodosia Seibold, captain.

Much praise is due Miss Davis, who managed the team this year. More teams of collegiate rank were played this year than in any previous year.

Davis, Mgr.; Siebold, Capt.; Callahan,
Fogerty, Stimson.

Boys' Tennis

Last spring tennis was made a university sport by the action of the faculty committee on athletics. Fenton Fadeley was appointed manager Try-outs were held in Potomac Park and a small schedule arranged for the short time remaining.

Four matches of singles and two of doubles composed the program with each college. Maryland State was met first at College Park. The G. W. boys took all six matches.

The second match was with Georgetown on our courts. Out of the six matches John Graves won one set of singles from the Georgetown man.

The third match was with St. John at Annapolis and the G. W. team again took all six matches.

In the return match with Georgetown Graves and Moore took first doubles and first and second singles, making the score 3 to 3.

The last match of the season was played with Catholic University and this time our boys took every set in the six matches.

Letters were awarded to Graves, Moore, Karrick, Howard, Finley, Cooper, Marthinson.

Graves was elected captain for the 1917 season and Fadeley was reappointed manager. Matches have been scheduled with Johns Hopkins, Maryland State, Catholic University, Georgetown, Virginia, and Fordham.

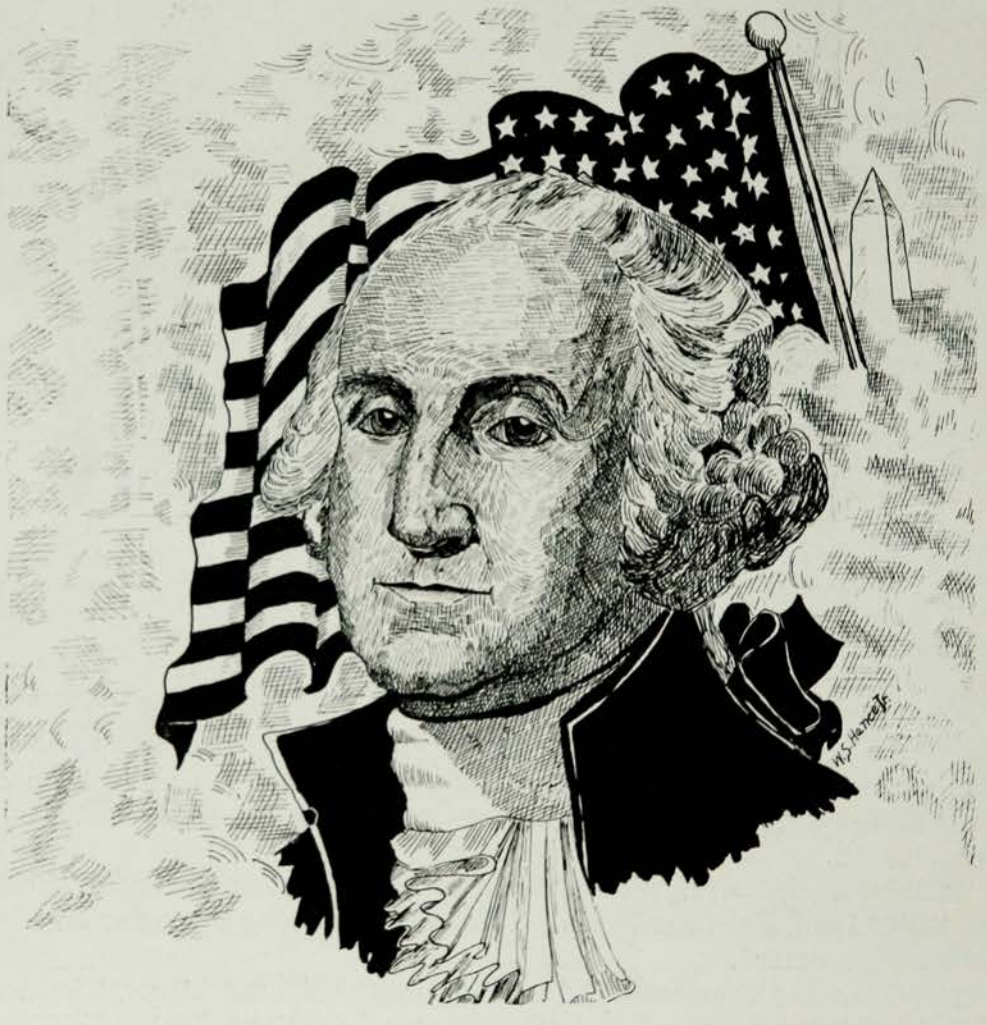

Reh, Stanton, Stimson,
Aultman, Siebold, Moses.

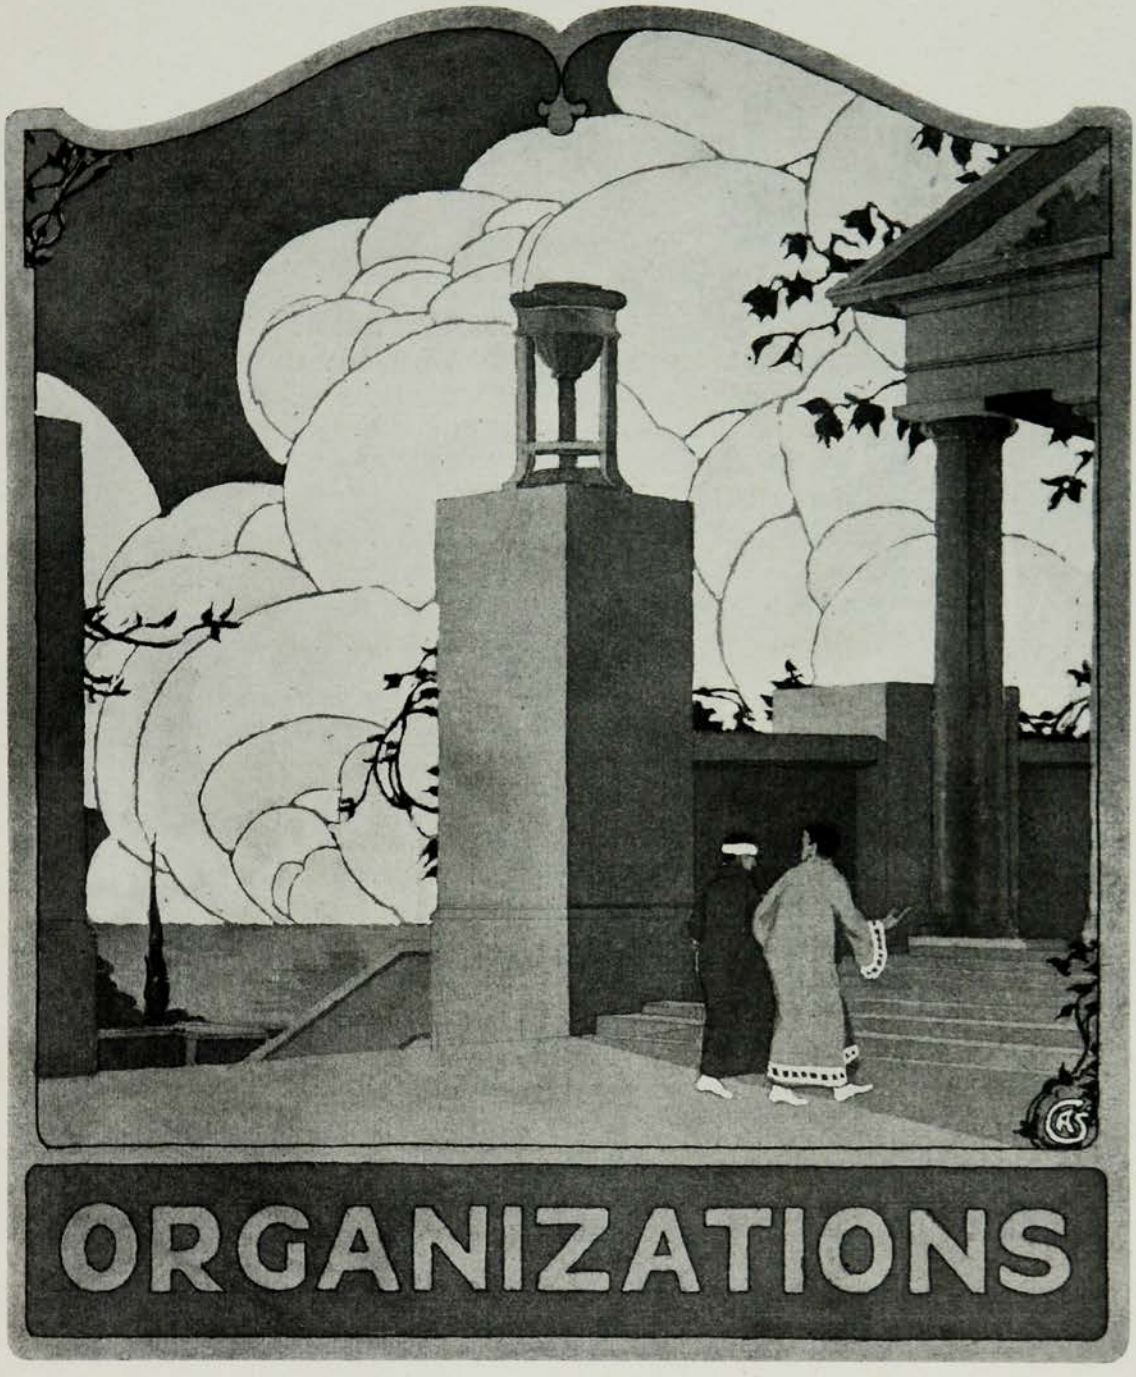

Girls' Tennis

The girls' tennis team is very much encouraged by its showing so far. An unusually large number of girls turned out in the fall and a team has been chosen to play off matches in the spring with colleges in and around Washington.

Championship games will be played early in the spring between Theodosia Seibold and Kathleen Moses. Plans are also being made for an elimination tournament.

The following have come out for the team: Kathleen Moses, Theodosia Seibold, Edith Aultman, Charlotte Stimpson, and Emma Reh. Nell Stanton is in charge of the team.

As the old adage, "In Union there is Strength" has proven true in so many lines of endeavor, it would be peculiar if such were not the case in an organization whose members all have interests more or less in common. In the George Washington University the Interfraternity Association has come to be recognized, in the few years of its existnce, by both faculty and students, as the symbol of organized fraternalism, through which the various fraternity chapters may speak with a certainty that they will be heard.

In carrying out the purposes for which it was founded, the Association has held annually for a number of years, an Interfraternity Smoker, at which Greek letter men have an excellent opportunity for becoming thoroughly acquainted. The annual promenade, however, is the all-important social function in fraternity circles and is usually the last big University event before Commencement, being given, as a rule, immediately after the Easter holidays.

Since its organization, the Association has been active in the promotion of athletics, not only among its members, but also in the University at large. Its members have aided greatly in bringing back football after its several years' absence, and in maintaining other sports. At present writing an interfraternity bowling league is carrying through a rather long schedule and the result promises to be more uncertain than usual; in consequence there is considerable enthusiasm and keen rivalry.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

THE SCHOOL
YEAR

The School Year

As depicted in the letters of George Washington, 7th, to his chum, Thomas Jefferson, 6th.

Sept. 27, 1916.

DEAR TOM:

Well, Tom, I am here and feel like a full fledged "frosh" already. I went down to the school and after waiting some hours met Dean Wilbur, whom the undergrads call "Skipper," and signed my death warrant. At the same time I subscribed to the student activities fund so that I can see all that is going on around this school. And speaking of women, Tom, you should see some of our co-eds. Sally Tinker may be the belle of our little burg, but she can't hold a candle to the pulchritude here.

In the afternoon I strolled down to football practice and Tom, we are going to have some team. Coach Sullivan, from Colgate, has every man on the squad afraid of him and they are working like that old pair of mules I used to plow corn with.

I think I will join the Coast Artillery Corps, for you know I used to be pretty sharp with Pa's old shot gun. They drill on Wednesday nights the year round and take trips down the river on Sundays. I know it is going to be hard for me to see and do everything, but I will do my best and tell you all about it.

GEORGE.

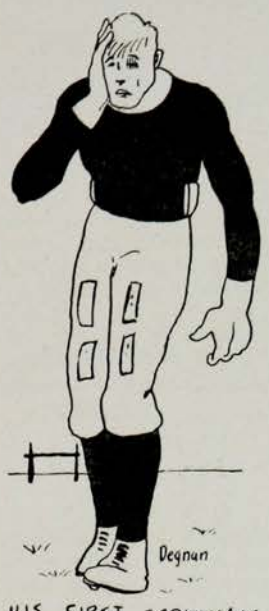

Oct. 6, 1916.

DEAR TOM:

This is sure some busy place, but I am keeping up with it and not missing anything. There is a governing board called the Student Council, composed of representatives from each department and this board meets every week and decides just how we students are to act. I hope to be elected to it one of these days, for you know I like to run things. Our football team beat St. John's College on the 7th. The score was 6 to 0. On the 9th I attended a meeting of the Enosinian Society. I heard a good talk and had some good eats. On the 11th the Engineering Society met and I would join if I thought I could be as smart as some of those fellows. Went to Gettysburg, Pa., on the 14th to see our team play and rode back in Mr. Hance's machine. Mr. Hance is an awful nice man and acts so intelligent.

Well, I must close now and study a little, for Tom, believe me, the professors here are strong for study. Wish you could go to the Chemical Society meeting with me on the night of the 18th. It meets twice a month and they say you can learn a lot of things and get a good feed.

GEORGE.

HIS FIRST SCRIMMAGE

Oct. 29th, 1916.

DEAR TOM:

Well, Tom, I never realized how slow the old town was till I got here and started around. And talk about "pep," they sure have it here. On the 20th we had a big mass meeting in every department to stir up interest in football. On the 21st I went to see our team play Western Maryland and we lost by the score of 3 to 0. On the 27th the Freshman classes held elections. After the election we took off our coats, rolled up our sleeves, and with brave hearts tried to pull the Sophs through the water in a tug of war. But, Tom, they had a system, and I caught a cold, for when I got under the stream of water our side took a spurt and kept me there for an hour it seemed. The next day, the 28th, I went to Baltimore and saw our team beat Johns Hopkins 13 to 0. Tom, we have some team.

GEORGE.

Nov. 20th, 1916.

DEAR TOM:

I know I haven't writen you for a long time, but Tom, I am mighty busy. Everyone around this old school seems to be busy and I like it. You should hear our band. It doesn't sound anything like our home band, for the leader here likes to play ragtime so the co-eds can dance. On the 4th our team held Ursinus to a tie, 0 to 0. On the 7th the girls basketball team started practice and Tom, they play awful rough. On the 11th we beat Eastern College, and Tom, you just should see our boys play football. We are going to have some basketball team, too, for a lot of fellows answered the call for candidates on the 14th. I went out riding with the Pleasurable Order of Pegasus on Sunday the 19th, and Tom, that is the only thing that these city boys can't show me up on. Hope you can get up Xmas.

GEORGE.

DEAR TOM:

I guess this letter will reach you before you leave. Too bad you were not here for the Georgetown vs. George Washington game, on Thanksgiving day. They beat us but we gave them a terrible fight. On the 15th of December the Women's University Club gave a "Mixer" down at school and I met more pretty girls. On the 16th our basketball team beat the U. of Md. quint. I went to the debate with U. of North Carolina, and although I couldn't understand what everyone said, I know we won. I guess you get tired of hearing of us winning, but Tom, it sure is great to be a student at G. W. U. And Tom, before I close I must tell you that we won from Gallaudet 30 to 21.

GEORGE.

Jan. 27, 1917.

DEAR TOM:

I'm glad you had a good time while here and wish you could have stayed longer. I could have taken you around a lot, for the fellows here have all the girls indexed and all you have to do is to pick out the one you like best and call her up. Our basketball team was beaten by the Navy team on the 3d, but we beat Temple Univ. at Philadelphia on the 8th. On the 13th we beat Catholic Univ., and Tom, you should have seen the game on the 20th. Our girls' team won from Holton Arms, and Georgetown beat us before a crowd of a thousand people.

FOUL WORK GOING ON HERE

On the 26th Groesbeck was elected senior marshal, with Bixler and Cannon as aids. The Student Council trie dout a new system of voting and it worked fine, only Groesbeck is a doctor, and I don't like doctors.

GEORGE.

Feb. 18, 1917.

DEAR TOM:

It has been a month since I wrote you, an dbelieve me, this has been some month. I don't see how all the students make such good marks and still go to so many affairs. We won from Davis and Elkins in basketball on the 27th of January, but lost to Gallaudet and Georgetown on the 3d and 7th. On the 9th the girls' team left for a long trip, and Tom, I hated to see them go, for some of my best friends were on the team. Mr. Hance (the nice man I told you about) went with them to the station and held the train till Miss Siebold powdered her nose. The same night I went to the Freshman Prom and took one of the girls down at school. I never have to look outside of school for my lady friends. On the 16th I went to the Chemical Society banquet and the following evening to the Columbian Debating Society affair. Our track team only took 2 1-2 points in the Georgetown track meet, but just wait until we have our track meet.

GEORGE.

Feb. 24*th*, 1917.

DEAR TOM:

Well, Tom, I went to church Sunday to the mid-year baccalaureate services and it was mighty impressive. You know I am a good boy, Tom, but I haven't had much time for church, but I think I will start now. On the evening of the 20th I went to the interdepartmental dance and had a good time, for Tom, we didn't have to dress up in soup and fish. The same night the Engineering Society had a banquet and I dropped in and heard a few talks and more eats. On my great, great, great grandfather's birthday the winter convocation was held at the school, and Dean Wilbur made a fine talk. That night the whole school turned out to see "A Night Off," given by the University Players, and believe me, Tom, there is some talent in this old school. I thought of you while I was dancing after the show and wished you could be dragging a woman around to good music.

GEORGE.

March 28, 1917.

WE WALKED AWAY WITH THE MEET THIS YEAR

DEAR TOM:

It seems that I can never find time to write you now, but you know how busy I am. For the first time in years our track team won the point trophy in their track meet held at the Convention Hall on March 2nd, and our relay team beat the Indians. We have organized an interclass baseball league and you can see the boys warming up behind the school in preference to attending class. The biggest event of the whole year was the vaudeville show given on the 23d and 24th in the Assembly Hall. The same Mr. Hance had it in charge, but he was rotten as a comedian. I had almost forgotten to tell you that I own part of a French baby, for I subscribed to the French war orphan fund started by Professor Henning. Well, Tom, I will have a lot of things to tell you the next time. There is the Alumni at Rauscher's on April 23d, the outdoor track meet in May, and a few women dates. In fact, Tom, there is something every minute.

GEORGE.

Why do we let Freshmen go to the Prom ?

PERCY 'FESSES UP.

DEAR JOE:

The past year has been a hard one for me, Joe. You know I used to tell you how I hated the name "Percy?" Well, Rosie always said that when I ever used an alias, it would be "Percy"—and so Allah hath spoken. I have been using "Percy" as an alias because I feared the leak through the Hatchet. Well, to get back to my story. Many of the people here suspected me of having been Percy and, whether they knew it or not, took delight in telling me what they thought of that individual. I went in the library one day and Louise was quite frank about it. She as much as said whoever Percy was, should be hung. I agreed with her. What else could I do, Joe? I am afraid now she'll want me to keep my word. There are others who have had grudges against me and by calling me Percy they would tell me just what kind of a scamp he was. Oh, I know now, who my friends are. All those who ridiculed Percy in my presence, are remembered. Just for that, I am going to cut them all out of my will. Joe, even Rosie has given me a slam. I never would have thought that of her, especially when I took her riding in my aeroplane. We were soaring above the speedway when she exclaimed:

"Oh, stop! Light! I dropped my pearl cuff button!"

It wasn't her cuff button at all, Joe, it was the basin she saw. I wish now that I had kept her up in the air. She would have suffered from hunger and sleep. And not only that, Joe, but Gertie must have a pretty good hunch who Percy was, because she always made a noise like a bluepoint when in my presence, after I wrote about her in the library. You remember reading about the man who had his hand shot off and didn't know it was off until he went to get something out of his pocket? Well, I feel like the man who had his head shot off and didn't know it was gone until he went to scratch it.

My year is almost over so I won't write to you any more. It is now your turn to write to me. As they say in France—Genug.

PERCY or, as you like it, WM. S. HANCE, JR.

THE JOKE WITHOUT A LABEL.

The chairman of the committee was addressing a meeting at a teachers' institute:

"My friends, the schoolwork is the bulhouse of civilization, I mean—ah——"

He began to feel frightened.

"The bulhouse is the schoolwork of civ—"

He was evidently twisted.

"The schoolbul is the housework—"

An audible snigger spread over the audience.

"The buschool—"

He was getting wild. So were his hearers. He mopped his perspiration, gritted his teeth and made a fresh start.

"The schoolhouse, my friends—"

A sigh of relief went up. Hamlet was himself again!

He gazed serenely around. The light of triumphant self-confidence was enthroned upon his brow.

"Is the woolbark—"

And that is when he lost consciousness.

CLOTHES DO NOT ALWAYS MAKE THE MAN.

A Fable.

Once there was A Medic, a Guy we know, but need not mention. He was leaning against a Hitching Post in front of The School, dreaming of we know not what, nor do we care. The Stude was waiting for the Bugle that calls the Carvers to the Wards. He was arrayed in All that was required. Nay, shame, 'twas the immaculate Drapery of the Hospital, likened unto that which the—but that would end the Tale.

A Rude Person, astride a Complicated Mechanism known as a Wheel, drew Nigh. He stopped. His tone was decidedly Schoenfeld. "Ah, ha," said he, "loafing again, I see, and why are you not at Work?"

Startled at the mention of Work, the Stude raised a Pensive Brow inquiringly. "Work? Why, there must be A Fox Paw, you are mistaken."

The Person of Toil, reeling back, scratched his Dome. His lamp flickered across the Rue de H to where a Diligent Servitor was manicuring the Boulevard. The Person staggered back still further, the Alcohol picturing its sunset on his Map. "Gadzooks," he did not yipe, but 'twould be Vain to Hope that Words of Poetry like his could enter here. For lack of Something Better we will say he said, "Gadzooks, I mistook thee for One of My Varlets."

Someone yanked the Bugle, disturbing the Serenity of the Scene, and the Pill Roller tottered to his Class.

are those that do not fluctuate during disturbed conditions of the money or stock market. WISE BRIDE.

"Now," said the bridegroom to the bride, when they returned from their honeymoon trip, "let us have a clear understanding before we settle down to married life. Are you the president or the vice-president of the society?"

"I want to be neither president nor vice-president," she answered. "I will be content with a subordinate position."

"What position is that, my dear?"

"Treasurer."—Tit-Bits.

How About You?

Lawyers and physicians need business training so that they may be able to conduct their business affairs more economically and effectively. A thorough knowledge of bookkeeping and business systems is indispensable, since no person can evade contact with the business world.

The wonderful accomplishment of being able to write at the pace of the voice, made possible by stenography, is of such indisputable value as to require no comment. Every person who is ever required to make rapid notes—people in every professional vocation as well as in the business world—will appreciate the value and need of stenography.

The Washington Business and Civil Service School is the only school of its kind in Washington that employs Certified Specialists to give its students INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION. Investigation will prove its superior standard.

THE ROUGE-BOX: A FABLE.

There was once a misguided maiden who came to the University from the place where cities are not. And she desired above all things to be chic. She was as sweet as a June morning and had a complexion like a wild rose petal. But she put on dangling ear-rings and purchased a box of rouge and applied the rabbit's foot diligently to her cheek bones. Some people said, "She used to be so pretty. What makes her look so hard and old?" And others said, "That girl would be good looking if she had sense enough to let her face alone."

Moral: Unless you are cleverer than the Queen of Sheba, don't try to improve upon nature.

WILLING.

TRUE SPIRIT.

He: "Your son did not graduate, after all?"

She: "No—Charlie has so much college spirit! You know there are so many graduating every year that it cripples college athletics."—Judge.

LEAVING CARLISLE BEHIND.

THAT CUNNING INGENUE

You may rave about the footlights
  And the stage's rosy hue,
Or the hero-worshipped actor,
  But believe me, boys, I'm through.

Up behind the painted curtain
  Your ambitions still may steal,
You may long to breathe the sweetness
  Of the atmosphere ideal,

But for me, I say it's over.
  Though my hopes were stageward bent,
I have altered their direction
  Since my last experiment.

When we had that recent try-out
  And they cast me for the part
Of the young resourceful lover,
  I enjoyed it from the start.

As you know, I had no trouble
  At rehearsals—I was there
With the ease of young Dan Cupid
  And a perfect savor faire.

It was not until the climax
  Of the play the other night
That I had the slightest notion
  I would suffer actor's blight.

I remembered every action
  And my part was going fine
Till I reached that mushy love scene—
  Where I thought that I would shine.

It was there the trouble started
  And I overturned the glue
When I couldn't make an answer
  To that cunning ingenue.

I had sworn I loved her only—
  On the stage were just we two—
And the minx interpolated,
  "Are you sure that this is true?"

That's the line which got me rattled—
  Why, it wasn't in the play;
She was seeking for effect, I
  'Spose, and got it, in a way.

When I tried to reassure her
  I went straight up in the air,
For I thought of Susan sitting
  Just beyond the footlights there.

I forgot my cues entirely,
  And I fumbled like a clown
Till they saw my case was hopeless,
  And they pulled the curtain down.

Gee! the thought is awful galling,
  That I had to spoil the play,
And I'd give a million dollars
  If it hadn't been that way.

But there'll be no repetition,
  For, believe me, I am through—
Except, except, when Susan plays
  The cunning ingenue.

WILLIAM GILLIGAN.

Hance (In Hatchet office): These women make me tired, knocking on the door every five minutes."

Sweet Voice, following timid knock: "Information given out here?"

Hance: "It has." (SLAM.)

Editor: "Someone has to go to Baltimore for me."

Gertie Metzerott: "Oh! let me go."

Editor: "No; Baltimore is a bad town."

Gertie (very knowingly): "Aw, I know; I have a lot of relatives there."

Dean Wilbur—to class, on finding class-room temperature near zero: "Those of you who find the room too cold may take your books and go to some warmer place."

PRO-LONG.

One Ravenel pipes sweet strains of "It's Been a Long, Long Time Since I Been Home" outside Economics room.

Prof. Kern: "They ought to send a voice like that to the front."

THE HIGH COST OF BEING.

Ted Siebold (Usual row over having name misspelled on Hatchet Addressograph): "I want my name changed on your old machine."

Disciple of Economics: "Do you realize that it will cost the Hatchet three cents to do that?"

Ted: "Oh, man; you don't know how badly I want my name changed!"

HERE AND THERE IN THE CLASS.

"Which, of course, is an obvious absurdity."—Prof. Schreiber.

Prof. Peter: (Calling on Nehb): "And now we come to humane beings."

"There is a presumption that the infant is the child of its mother."—Haines.

"What's that got to do with it?"—Prof. Parks.

"I think you had better mark the meaty parts of this decision."—Judge Stafford.

CHIPPED FROM THE HATCHET.

"What's that that makes the college stare?"
Said the Co-Eds on parade.
"It's Croissant's tie, it's Croissant's tie,"
The College Barber said.

"He never changes, night or day,
It's always the same, has it come to stay?"
"It looks the best on a rainy day,"
The College Barber said.

"Does it always gleam with those rainbow hues?"
Said the Co-Eds on parade.
"Bright as flowers fresh-washed with dues,"
The College Barber said.

AT A CERTAIN SORORITY DANCE.

"Isn't it a relief not to have any men around?"

"Me fatal beauty will be muh death, s' help me."—George Nordlinger.

THE FRESHMAN COURSE.

Bus Johnson: "I wonder what would follow if all the Co-Eds left college."

Friend Stayton: "We would."

He begged for bliss a little kiss,
And swore he'd ne'er reveal it;
But still she would not give him this,
She wanted him to steal it.

"Why shouldn't I have my picture taken in a dress suit? I'm the cleverest guy in this town."—Mac Kelley.

Larry Burton (Soliloquizing on morality): "The best sermon is preached by your conscience in your own mind."

Less Sympathetic: "Aw, you can't preach a sermon in a vacant hall."

Not This Time.

"Quick, hand me that satchel!" yelled the physician, "a man just telephoned me in a dying voice that he couldn't live without me."

"Wait," declared his wife, who had taken up the receiver, "that call is for Edith."—Punch Bowl.

All in Vain.

"Dear Mabel, do you love me?"

"Oh, George!"

"Don't you, Mabel? Just a tiny little bit?"

"W-e-ll, y-e-s, George."

"And if I married you, would your father give us a separate establishment?"

"Yes, George."

"And would your mother keep away from us, except when I invited her?"

"Why certainly, George."

"And your brothers and sisters, too?"

"Why certainly, George."

"And, of course, the old gent would settle my debts?"

"Of course, George."

"Darling, will you marry me?"

"No, George."—Philadelphia Record
